PC hopefuls join Brandt at fundraiser

by LEN PIZZEY
Publisher

Whipping up enthusiasm for the leadership campaign and lambasting the Peterson government were equal priorities for Ontario Progressive Conservative Party interim leader Andy Brandt last Friday evening when he addressed about 80 party supporters at a $100 a plate fund raising dinner in Lindsay.

Brandt, who will step down as interim leader when a new leader is chosen next spring, said the selection process should help 'democratize' a party which has been struggling to rebuild its power base in the aftermath of a crushing defeat at the hands of the Liberals in 1986.

For the first time, the leader will be chosen by secret ballot through polling stations in each of the province's 130 ridings. The process is new to the Ontario political scene, but Brandt said he is confident it will be successful, uniting party supporters in preparation for an election which he believes will be called in 1990. While no candidates for the leadership have officially been declared, three prospective hopefuls — Bob Runciman, Mike Harris and Dianne Cunningham — were present and spoke briefly later in the evening.

Brandishing his familiar rhetorical sword, Brandt slashed the record of the Peterson government in a pre dinner speech.

Minden corner deemed unsafe

Traffic safety concerns have prompted Anson, Hindon and Minden's Planning Advisory Committee to suggest rejection of a severance application linked to a proposed bowling alley in Minden village.

PAC will also be requesting that AHM council conduct a traffic study as a result of the application.

Gerald Moore, Terry Clarke and their wives own a residential property on the Bobcaygeon Road just before it meets Highway 35, across from Dr. Holliday-Rhodes' clinic. They want to sever the lot to provide an entranceway to the house, while planning to use the present entranceway to service a bowling alley.

Ray Moore, PAC member and also AHM's reeve, is the father and father-in-law of Gerald Moore and Clarke, so he declared an interest and left the room during the discussion of the severance application.

"Every driveway is going to increase the traffic flow," said chairman Dean Elliott. Traffic at this end of the Bobcaygeon Road is already heavy because of the entrances to Home Hardware, IGA, the hospital, two doctors' offices, and real estate offices and will increase when the new drugstore opens. PAC member Bern Berry, who is also AHM deputy-reeve, said there is also a plan to build a road here for the proposed Mount Minden housing development.

"People will just say 'To hell with it, it's just a ball up and I'm not going to go in,'" said Elliott, who works and lives near the intersection. "It's not just the (Moore/Clarke) entrance in itself (I'm concerned about), it's what it will do to the street."

"We're looking at the whole spectrum. Are you going to permit all the bloody entrances when we already have a serious traffic problem? Now we're saying we're going to make it worse?"

"Even Cec Rowe's house is up for sale with thoughts of turning it into a large restaurant-style thing," said Berry.

"I'm wondering when the first accident takes place," said PAC member Bill Payne, who lives and works on the hill overlooking the intersection. "We're creating a monster there if we carry on with it and it bothers me no end."

"We're creating a monster there if we carry on with it and it bothers me no end."

Payne's main concern is a large rock just beside the Moore/Clarke property. "That's a blind spot," Payne said, with Elliott adding "I've had two accidents there myself... I can see the need for three lanes of traffic and who's going to pick up the cost of that?"

Providing the only comments in favour of the severance, PAC member Jim Garbutt said since the land is zoned commercial, people who buy land there have a right to expect they can develop commercial properties.

"People by property and if it's commercial and they don't need a severance, they could put something on there that would be worse," Garbutt said. He believes that if PAC uses the traffic argument, it will create an unfair situation for people on Moore/Clarke's side of the road.

"We've created a problem with respect to that corner," Payne admitted, but he did not want to make it worse. Responding to Garbutt's point that had a severance not been applied for, Moore and Clarke could do what they want on the property, Payne said "if it was detrimental

Too many docks at park: neighbour

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The Ministry of Natural Resources will be asked to inspect the docks at a Lutterworth trailer park after council received a complaint about their number.

In a letter to Lutterworth council, Donald and June Burt said council is "allowing a situation to develop that interferes with our rights as (cottage) owners to be able to swim in the river opposite this camp."

They say it appears each camper at the Lutterworth Valley Trailer Park on Highway 35 north of Norland is erecting a dock.

"There is nothing wrong with one dock for each site on the (Gull) River, but we are now faced with docks every 25 feet which in our situation makes swimming unsafe," the Burts write. They hope council will "stimulate some action towards a fairness that allows a reasonable mix of cottagers and campers."

"We surely respect their rights but unfortunately people who do not have permanent facilities seem to abuse the rights of permanent residents."

"They're perfectly correct," said Councillor Bill Valentine at last Thursday's council meeting.

"There's one hell of a mess down there. (New docks) are going up like mushrooms."

Council will ask the MNR to do a site inspection of the docks to see if the park is following proper shoreline improvement guidelines.

As noted in the township's information update, which prompted the Burts' letter, "anyone planning work that may have an impact on lakes, marshes, riverbeds or other shorelines, such as building a dock... must first contact the MNR."

Sir Sandford postpones classes till strike is over

by SUSAN GROBER

Haliburton County's continuing education and night courses offered by Sir Sandford Fleming College will be put on hold until Ontario's college teaching staff end their strike.

Problems in contract negotiations over wages, job security, and sick leave were the reason 54 per cent of the province's 22 colleges voted in favour of a strike, which started October 18.

According to Sir Sandford president Brian Desbiens, the college will look into "a variety of options" to get students through their courses when the strike ends so they will not have lost a year. "In the educational system in Ontario, students have successfully managed to get their year when strikes have occurred before."

Depending on the length of the strike, these options include weekend and evening classes, cancellation of winter break, and an extension into the summer months, says Desbiens.

Students who decide to leave their courses for the year will get a refund subject to the normal penalties, he adds. But if the strike is dragged out, forcing the cancellation of courses, the college will attempt to give the best possible refund.

Minden acknowledges Jeanne Sears, names her Citizen of the Year

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

A FEW JOYFUL TEARS were shed Monday night when the Minden Rotary Club honoured Jeanne Sears with its Citizen of the Year award for continued social contribution in the community.

Well-known for her work with the Minden Library, and her column, Around The County Town in the Minden Times, (which she stopped writing just last month), Mrs. Sears still keeps active at a bright 70 years of age. Times publisher Jack Brezina presented Mrs. Sears with a synopsis of her accomplishments in the community.

A resident of the Minden area for almost 50 years, Mrs. Sears is a native of Woodville and was raised in Stouffville. After graduating from Toronto Normal School—or teacher's college—in 1940, Mrs. Sears took on a position at the Dugan School in Lochlin where she taught 11 students at different grade levels in a one-room schoolhouse.

It took less than a year at this hectic pace for Mrs. Sears to realize that teaching wasn't for her, so she moved to Minden where she met and married her late husband, Milt Sears, in 1941. The couple work-

Local school boards can't pay for deficits: trustees

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

With the province creating mandatory programs while reducing funding, school boards should not be held responsible for budget deficits, the education minister is being told. At last month's meeting, local trustees agreed to support a letter to the Ministry of Education from Vincent McInnes, chairman of the Huron-Perth County Roman Catholic Separate School Board. Earlier in the meeting, Education Director of Education Stuart Baker told trustees the Haliburton County Board of Education may face a deficit this school year because additional staff must be hired to handle increased enrollment.

The letter states that with provincial initiatives such as mandatory junior kindergarten and "the rather unexpected and disproportional increase in the 1989 equalized mill rate", avoiding local deficits "has proved to be a demanding and, in some cases, impossible task."

Increased local share requirements and the announced 6.1 per cent increase in education transfer payments meant a reduction in grants (10.54 per cent for the Huron-Perth separate school board). In Haliburton County this year, the province's grant increased by less than one per cent, so municipalities had to pay an average 15.7 per cent more in compensation.

Grant reductions have caused many school boards "to rush to cut back drastically on previously set school board priorities in order to accommodate newly mandated ministry programs and provincial initiatives."

"The speed with which these adjustments had to be made causes trustees to question the process and leaves ratepayers confused and upset," the letter reads.

"While boards should be held accountable and not knowingly create a deficit, the Ministry of Education should accept some responsibility for deficits resulting from new ministry program initiatives and last minute adjustments to the equalized mill rate and provide additional provincial resources to assist school boards to fund such deficits."

Snowmobile club seeks members

The membership drive for the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association is well underway.

As well as snowmobilers, the association is hoping to attract businesses to support the new levy program, which will help defray some of the costs of maintaining and upgrading the extensive trail system.

However, the association would like to warn businesses that advertising in the "official HCSA map" is only available through contacting Kim Thompson at 286-2750. Another company has been soliciting ads, the association says, but the promotions have not been sanctioned by the HCSA.

"In fact, any duplication of the official HCSA map will be treated as a copyright infringement," says a press release.

Tenders go out for Hwy. 118 work

Tenders have been called for reconstruction on Highway 118 from Highway 35 easterly to 1.7 km east of Maple Lake for 8 km.

This project on Highway 118 between Highway 35 and Maple Lake consists of 5.7 km of new grading as well as 2.3 km of previously graded roadway.

The entire 8 km will be paved and various deteriorated culverts and storm sewers will be replaced.

The overall results of this work will provide significantly improved driving conditions through this area.

Tenders will be opened for this project at Ministry of Transportation headquarters in Downsview November 8, 1989.

Couldn't pay for taxi, man charged

Police News

During the week of Oct. 16-23, officers of the Minden Detachment investigated 72 general occurrences and 10 accidents with 3 persons injured.

FRAUD

Shawn Everett Easton, 20, of Haliburton, has been charged with Transportation Fraud after an occurrence on Oct. 17. Easton took a taxi ride and was unable to pay for it at his destination. Easton has been also charged with Breach of Recognizance. His court appearance is on Dec. 6 in Minden.

INJURY ACCIDENT

Two people received minor injuries in a 2-car accident on Wed., Oct. 18 on County Rd. 12 east of Dorset. David Villard of Dorset was east bound when he was struck by a car driven by James Greening of Toronto who was west bound. Villard and passenger Christopher Papertzan were injured. Greening has been charged with Driving left of Centre, no clear view.

SEAT BELT SAFETY—MYTHS AND FACTS

MYTH—The chances of being in an accident are slim.

FACT—Everyone can expect to be in a crash once every 10 years. For one out of 20 people it will be a serious crash. For one out of every 60 children born today it will be fatal.

MYTH—Safety belts are not necessary when taking short trips at low speeds.

FACT—Three out of four crashes occur within 40 KM of home. Eighty percent of deaths and serious injury occur in cars travelling under 65 KM/H. What's holding you back. Save your life, save some money. WEAR YOUR SEAT BELT.

ed hard to raise their five children together.

With Mrs. Sears' love for learning and information, she soon found work with the local library to be of interest. She served several years on the library board, including a term as chairman, and accepted what turned out to be a 17-year position as "acting librarian" (since she hadn't studied to be one) in 1966.

Other interests include Mrs. Sears' work as a member of the Minden Women's Institute since 1948, a group which "has provided a vital link for rural women," said Brezina. That group has since honoured Mrs. Sears (who is currently the local branch president) with a life memberships at both the branch and district levels.

Even her interest in students and schooling was utilized when Mrs. Sears helped form the Archie Stouffer Elementary Home and School Association, where she served as president.

Aside from being a regular at weekly bingo, Mrs. Sears is probably best-known for her work as a correspondent with the local newspapers. Before reading any other part of the paper, many would first flip to Mrs. Sears' column, said Brezina. "For most, it was 'must' reading."

After years of logging anything from engagements to recipes to poetry to coming events, if anyone knows about the Minden community, it must be Mrs. Sears. Although most recently writing for the Times and its predecessor, the Progress, Mrs. Sears has also contributed to the Haliburton Echo, and the Lindsay Daily Post.

Presenting the award to Mrs. Sears was Minden Rotary President Russ Paul and District Governor John Cockburn, from the Peterborough Club.

Brandt knocks all that's Liberal red

"We can't afford another four years of David Peterson", with policies based on 'Hi, how are you?' and responses of 'Don't worry, be happy' to questions in the House, Brandt said.

It is a government of broken promises and broken commitments, lacking in honesty and lacking in forthrightness, Brandt told his audience of PC supporters from across Victoria-Haliburton.

In 1986 the Liberals promised to fund 4,400 new hospital beds at a cost of $850 million, and the PC's "got trapped" into complimenting the Liberals for the initiative, Brandt said. When Health Minister Elinor Caplan is asked in the House what

Later in the evening three prospective candidates for the leadership were given time for brief addresses.

Bob Runciman, MPP for Leeds-Grenville, said the leadership election is an opportunity to "change the face of the party" and recapture the public's imagination and interest. Runciman urged party members to support new and daring policy initiatives, including a four year commitment to a tax freeze. He also advocated the establishment of a sort of "environment Peace Corps" to get young people involved in protecting and cleaning up the environment.

Runciman criticized the government's policy on French language services, urging PC's to advocate a "common sense" approach of providing services in both official languages where numbers warrant, such as in Sudbury, Cornwall or Welland, but not requiring it in areas where there is little or no francophone population.

"We want to be fair" said Runciman, but in a way "that is not going to contribute to social divisions in the province."

Runciman also advocated changes that would strengthen the independence of back bench legislators. He said matters of confidence, on which a united caucus votes is essential, should be few and clearly defined, leaving MPP's free to vote according to their own conscience. This would enable them to better represent their constituents, Runciman argued.

Mike Harris, MPP for Nippissing and a former Minister of Natural Resources, did not urge any specific new policy initiatives in his speech. Instead, he argued the need for a more co operative spirit among government and its partners — the lower tier governments, school boards, hospital boards and other organizations that provide direct services to the public with funds transferred from provincial tax revenues.

Harris said the PC's are recognized as the alternative party at Queen's Park, a perception that the party must build upon as it gears up to try to oust the Liberals from power.

Harris urged party supporters to campaign for the leadership candidate of their choice and approach the leadership election "in a positive, constructive way."

The only woman to have declared an interest in the leadership to date is Dianne Cunningham, MPP for London North. A relative newcomer to provincial politics, Cunningham was elected last year in a stunning by-election victory, capturing a seat that had been a long time Liberal stronghold in David Peterson's home town.

Cunningham used the opportunity to do some Liberal bashing of her own, saying the Peterson government has "failed miserably", and shown "poor management and no common sense."

She criticized the government's proposed no fault insurance legislation, saying it takes away important individual rights, and noted that they didn't listen to the people on the Sunday shopping issue, although they spent $11 million to get recommendations from the public before deciding to ignore them.

Cunningham concluded by urging party supporters to view the leadership campaign as an opportunity to build unity, not as a quest for power among individual candidates.

Planner has Brady Lake concerns

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

A proposal for 16 new lots on Brady Lake should be a plan of subdivision, Anson, Hindon and Minden's Planning Advisory Committee decided at Wednesday's meeting.

Responding to a letter from municipal planner Robert Lehman, PAC members said that while they usually favour severances because they're less time-consuming, the interests of the municipality are best protected by advising council that Donald Campbell should have to create a subdivision.

Campbell wants to sever off 16 new lots within Lots 1 and 2, Concession 5 in Hindon Township. As part of his proposal, he wants a redefinition of the Hazard Land boundaries on this land.

A Ministry of Natural Resources inspection of the property showed that "although the majority of the Hazard areas identified confirm the current Official Plan mapping, the ministry has indicated that the island can be excluded as the ground elevations are sufficient to prevent any flooding," Lehman wrote in his report. The ministry said it will "generally support" the development, as long as more information is provided.

"I have some serious concerns that the Townships' interest will not be protected under the (severance) consent legislation as opposed to the subdivision procedures," wrote Lehman. Also, "Lehman added, "given the current concern regarding lake environment and water quality, the processing of a subdivision would receive the full scrutiny of both the MNR and the Ministry of the Environment with all of their technical assistance."

"I'd be concerned if I owned property on Brady Lake and I found out there'd be 16 new lots," said PAC member Jim Garbutt.

"Unless you're doing 30 lots, a plan of subdivision is not economically viable," said chairman Dean Elliott, but in this application, he too would have to favour this route.

PAC meeting heats over use of Bobcaygeon Road

enough, I think we could stop it," Payne later said he could agree in part with Garbutt's argument. "I feel a little the same way as Jim because we're treading on people's rights."

Elliott said the purpose of PAC was to help council decide what was best for the community, not just individuals in it.

When the vote was taken, Elliott, Payne, Berry and Morgan Loucks voted against the application, while Garbutt voted in favour of it.

The theme of this conversation was resumed at the end of the meeting, when Payne made a motion to have council do a traffic study between the intersection and the downtown core. By this time, Moore had returned to the room.

"Planning went at a really fast and hard pace in the past six months," said Payne. "We have a lot of development coming up on that road. Our trials and tribulations have been along that road and I think we need a little help... We're trying to make decisions based on information we don't have."

Moore said that a cause study done in 1982 recommended commercial development along the road and the official plan supported it by zoning it commercial.

"Traffic has increased so drastically they couldn't possibly see that," Payne responded. "Nineteen-eighty-two isn't 1989 and just the fact this country has moved a such a fast pace, it's time for another study."

"We have to live with the problem," Moore said. "Are you going to try to take away someone's C-zoning?"

"Why do we go over the official plan every five years," Payne said.

"People can buy property there and apply for re-zoning and you can't go against the official plan. They'll take you to the Ontario Municipal Board and win," Moore said. "Are you going to go through this whole thing spot by spot?"

"I understand an official plan as a guide to the future but we all make mistakes. The conditions seven years down the road aren't the same as today," said Payne.

"If we have all this big development, that becomes Anson, Hindon and Minden's problem to create three lanes," Elliott said, making the same point he made when Moore wasn't part of the first discussion. "Is council prepared to spend that kind of money to upgrade the road to handle the amount of traffic?"

"What we have to look at is the ineptitude of our council and PAC prior to the past year or two," said

Moore, who was first elected last November. "We've had really lax site plan development."

By this time, the discussion had become heated and Berry, who was also on the previous council said "the council did the best we could" as he stood up and prepared to leave the room. The meeting was then called to an end.

Flood plain talk stalled till spring

A public meeting to discuss Lutterworth's new flood plain policy will not be held until spring.

"There's no point in trying to pass this through this year in view of the questions we have," said Reeve Carol Puffer at last Thursday's council meeting. Council had just received the planner's report from Totten Sims and Hubicki and has questions about it. However, a meeting with the planner could not be set up until late November.

"If we're going to (have a meeting), we should do it right and have all the answers," said Puffer.

In order to avoid the controversy which has surrounded Anson, Hindon and Minden's passing of its flood plain bylaw, council reassured ratepayers that a public meeting would be held before any policy was adopted. This would provide a forum for residents' concerns and objections.

Boat funding nixed

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Funding for an emergency services boat in Lutterworth Township is unlikely to be approved by the Joint Emergency Preparedness Program (JEPP), council was told at last Thursday's meeting.

Council requested this information from JEPP in response to a presentation by Gull Lake Cottagers' Association president Peter Elmslie last August. Elmslie had asked council to consider acquiring a boat to be used by fire, ambulance and police departments in areas which are inaccessible by road. Representatives of the Black Lake and Devil's Lake associations also attended the meeting in support.

However, in a letter read Thursday, it said that emergency boats were not a high priority with JEPP and were unlikely to be funded.

Council will notify to cottagers' associations about the JEPP response.

PEOPLE

Exchange sisters can bicker and make up in 2 languages

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

ONE REALLY GETS accustomed to being an only child—never having to share your home, friends or parents with a peer—but after 18 years of going it alone, Nicki Vachon seems more than accustomed to her new "sister."

Coming all the way from Rio de Janeiro, 17-year-old Brazilian Daniela ("Danni") Silva has been staying with Diane and Claude Vachon at their Wilberforce home for the past month on the Educational Foundation for Foreign Study exchange program. She's used to having a close relationship with brother Bruno, 18, and sister Gisela, 13, in Brazil, and Danni has now made herself at home with her new family in Haliburton County.

"I wanted to learn to respect and love different laws, different culture and different people," Danni says of why she came to Canada.

Danni certainly has learned to love her new friend Nicki. The pair "jokingly" argue back and forth almost incessantly... just like true sisters.

"We have a lot in common," says Nicki. "We're both really outgoing people, and that helps us in getting along."

After these kind comments, Nicki eyes Danni who sits next to her on the couch, carefully watching the Young and the Restless (soap operas have become a near obsession), oblivious to her words. In a loud voice Nicki continues: "One thing we don't have in common is that when we go shopping, Danni wants every, single pair of shoes in the WORLD!"

"Be nice, Nicki," Danni coos as she pats her "sister" on the cheek. "It's okay."

"Danni is dying to shop at the little stores along Yonge St. when we visit Toronto," says Mrs. Vachon.

"Maybe I'll sell her when we're there," adds Nicki, who is rewarded with a tight hug from Danni.

Whenever these jokes go too far, and Nicki begins to get just a little annoyed, Danni comes back with a smile, laugh or a hug.

"Then I really get mad," says Nicki.

"We're having the best time of our lives," says Mrs. Vachon. "We get double the hugs when Danni's around. She likes to hug me because she says I'm 'fluffy.' She's a really easy person to have around."

"And it's a lot noisier in the house," she adds.

"It's more noisy at home than here," assures Danni as Nicki rolls her eyes and asks, "How could it be?" "Oh, my brother and sister and me, we fight all the time."

And how does Mr. Vachon feel about living in a house filled with noisy women? "There's three against me now," he says with a laugh. "No, I'm enjoying Danni's stay very much. My only fear is if she learns how to drive, she'll want to borrow the car or the truck."

"I can just picture you driving," says Nicki. "You'll probably smash into something."

"Oh, you're pulling my leg," Danni says, proudly trying out one of her new English phrases.

Nervous about speaking English

Danni certainly has made good use of the opportunity to practise her English, although speaking the language was one of her greatest fears before coming to Canada.

"I was afraid that people can't understand me," she says.

"Huh?!" shouts Nicki with a wicked smile.

"Our English/Portuguese dictionaries are very dog-eared," explains Mrs. Vachon, ignoring her daughter's comment and explaining to Danni that dog-eared means "old-looking."

"I don't need my dictionary anymore," Danni says proudly. "But it is old looking."

"That's because you're always showing us all the bad words," says Nicki.

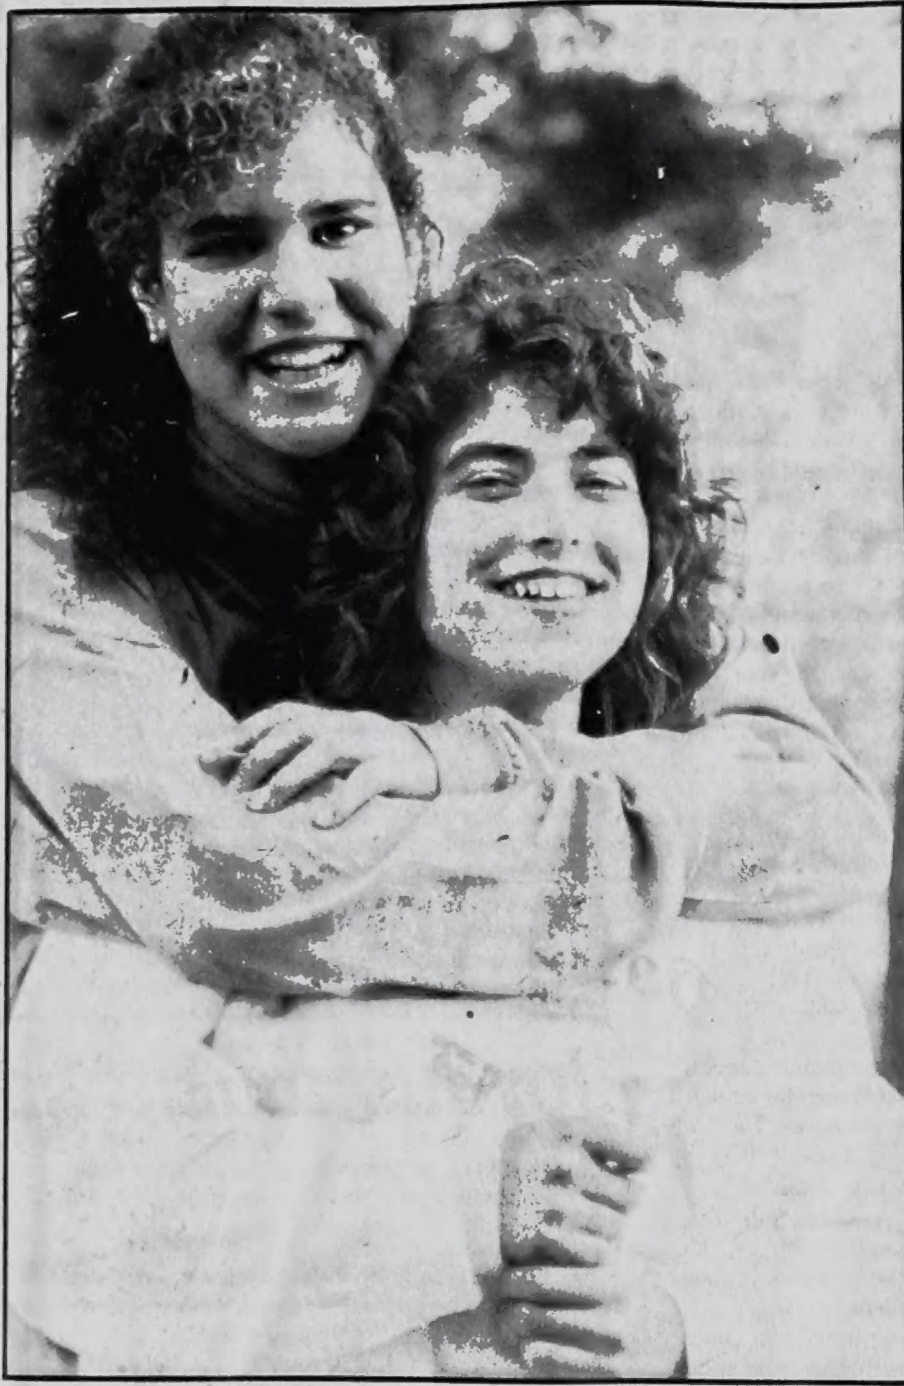

So far the Vachon family has shown Danni many of the tourist areas in Ontario. She's been to Niagara Falls, Marineland, and Canada's Wonderland. ("Oh-my-god on the roller-coaster everybody can stand up.")

But this winter Danni—who's more familiar with the sun and surf on the beaches of Rio de Janeiro—plans to take in all of the pleasures of snow right here in Haliburton County.

"Nicki says she wants to teach me how to ski on the snow," Danni also wants to learn how to skate on the lake, but she may plan to heed her father's advice. "He told me to put a line on my belly to go out on the lake—if the lake broke then they could pull me in."

Of course, Danni has been finding the present temperatures quite chilly, so she might find it difficult getting used to the winter wonderland that is in store.

"The other day when it snowed, Danni refused to leave the school," says Nicki. "She said, 'That's not real snow—that's what you get in the refrigerator.'"

"We get double the hugs when Danni's around," says Diane Vachon. Brazilian Daniela Silva demonstrates this point with her new sister Nicki.

"It didn't seem real," says Danni, for whom the prospects of winter hold much fascination. "I'm so excited. I want to make a snowman, and fight with the snow. And skating on the lake, of course."

And the glorious colours of the changing leaves are just one source of pleasure for Danni this autumn. "I like it when there's fog on the lake in the morning. It's so beautiful."

Getting used to the weather is one thing. Getting used to the people was another.

"It's so different here," says Danni. "People in Brazil are more friendly. If you meet a person and they want to be your friend, you go shopping and you go to their house. Here people are cold. ('She means more reserved,' clarifies Mrs. Vachon.) They go about things in different ways."

Secondary school in Brazil is also different. "You go to school at seven in the morning and stay in just one class. You don't have to go to other classes like they do here. The teachers come to you."

This means the same group of Brazilian students see one another all day in school. "That's why it's

Readers unite! New club promises enlightenment

JUST WHAT DID the author mean by that ending? Did it have anything to do with the scene in Chapter Five? Do you think all of this really could have happened, or is it simply artistic licence?

A good book will challenge the mind as well as provide hours of entertainment. And while reading is a solitary pleasure, the book can become even more satisfying when discussed among friends. Questions can be asked, and perhaps even answered.

Someone else's insight can deepen your own understanding. Suddenly, the book's themes and characters are more rich, full of body and life because you take the time to linger over their meaning.

Ruth Still and Catherine Denholm are two readers who aren't satisfied with just shutting a book when they finish reading it. Thoughts are racing through their minds, and they're frustrated by the inability to let them run their course. To remedy the situation, they've decided to form a book club; a gathering perhaps not of like minds, but minds which share their desire to learn all there is to learn.

"I want to know what people are thinking about," says the novel-reading Mrs. Denholm. Her book list would include A Prayer for Owen Meany, The Temple of My Familiar and The Radiant Way by Margaret Drabble.

"I like court room dramas," says Mrs. Still, referring to real-life cases rather than Perry Mason. The exploration of what drives people to crime illustrates "signs of the times—materialism, stress."

Right from the start, it's easy to tell that choosing which books to profile will be their most difficult task. But along with other new members, each should be able to propose the "book of the month" and be content with it.

The other problem, which is less easily solved, will be restricting superfluous discussion. (The interview for this story did its fair share of meandering, wandering from conversations about worrisome trends in society, to recent magazine articles, to the changing role of women. If the club were allowed to follow such a rambling course, meetings would last all day and the novel's messages could still be untouched.)

One suggestion is to set up guidelines, based on previous book reviews. William French writes in the Globe that such and such a book dies about halfway through, would you support this claim? Books in Canada has a synopsis of a book which made it sound marvelous but Quill and Quire says it has no focus. How are characters developed? Is the plot believable? Are the themes original?

While neither of the women want the club to be elitist, a high standard of writing will be a prerequisite for any book chosen to be reviewed. As well, "We're not a literacy club." The purpose is not to promote reading, which is a noble cause but best pursued by another group, but to foster discussion on books read.

However, at the same time, the women want to steer away from the traditional book clubs, which chose books for their morally uplifting tone. And one needn't belong to any social circle in particular to join.

Members must be prepared to buy the books, although Stephen Patrick of Patrick Books says there are many quality paperbacks being published. For instance, Margaret Atwood's Cat's Eye is now in paperback, as well as Robertson Davies' The Lyre of Orpheus.

The first meeting, during which the first book title will be chosen, will likely be held in November.

GOOD BOOKS: Catherine Denholm, left, and Ruth Still browse through the books at Patrick Books, trying to decide what to suggest to fellow members of their new book club. They plan to have first meeting in November.

Joyous music helps others reach out to needy

IN ITS SPIRIT of one community helping another, Help A Village Effort's annual fundraising concert provides a way for the charity organization to reach out to those in need while uplifting the spirits of those who do the giving.

On Saturday, November 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium, HAVE will once again be hosting its popular variety night. The money raised at the event is used to help dig wells and provide assistance in developing countries. Admission is by donation, and this year's contributors, no matter how much they donate, will definitely get their money's worth.

Many of the performers are no strangers to Haliburton audiences. Both Ed Moll, minister of the Minden pastoral, and St. George's Choir, are well-known for their Sunday "performances." They will not disappoint on a Saturday.

Anyone who was at CHANGE's recent fundraising concert will know Rev. Moll has a second calling as a musician. His voice is clear and vibrant, and his mixture of his own songs and those of others are both entertaining and enlightening.

For its first four numbers, the choir's performance will not hold many surprises. Under Bill Gliddon's leadership, the choir will sing four contemporary, sacred songs: Wrestling Jacob, Find Us Faithful, In the Quiet Hours and Oh Give Thanks to the Lord. But the singers promise to have just as much fun as the audience as they break out into renditions of Getting to Know You from The King and I, and Oklahoma!

Younger members of the audience will take particular delight in the performance of Precious Friends. Dianne Hagerman and Janice Benoit are just that, and they make even more friends with their child-oriented songs. Both women love to sing and like their audience to share that enthusiasm by clapping, dancing and singing along.

Nancy Ward may have a children's album out called We Want to Grow Up, but her performance will be geared for music-appreciators of all ages.

During her career which had its start in the '60s, Ward has sung with numerous musicians such as Ian Thomas and Sylvia Tyson. In 1977, she was commissioned by Boris Brott to write a symphony, The Fall, and it was performed by the Hamilton Philharmonic.

We Want to Grow Up came out in 1986, and is an up-tempo, well produced collection of songs which indicate Ward's concern for the people—and life in general—around her. For instance, in the title song, she sings for peace and an end to hate and hunger.

"The HAVE Committee," says organizer Lynn Duncombe, "is especially delighted that Nancy's back-up band is also able to donate their time and talent."

"Our audience will welcome back old friends Ken Hadly on saxophone and percussionist Richard Stouffer. With talented Steve Clark on bass and band leader John Ebatta, who also plays the synthesizer, we are promising a show that will 'knock your socks off.'"

To look at Lorraine you'd never know she has a disability - but she does.

"I think people regard others who have a hidden disability as incapable of handling a job because they don't understand. It's hard to understand something you can't see."

Like over 937,000 adults in Ontario, Lorraine has a disability. She has one of the many different kinds of hidden disabilities. But Lorraine doesn't let it stop her from leading a full life. She's an active member of her community, a wife and a mother of two children and she has a full-time job.

In fact, the biggest problem Lorraine has is not her epilepsy but the way people look at it. Now, if we judge Lorraine by something we can't see—perhaps we should take a closer look at ourselves.

Many hands...

They came by the scores, by the hundreds, from as far as 400 kilometres away, to help the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses erect a new meeting hall. The site had been cleared, the pad poured, and by Friday night, the walls already were up, the roof sheeted and the shingles laid. But there was much work left to be done, and they came to do it, in a spirit of volunteerism the like of which hasn't been seen many times before in Haliburton County. While rain poured down and a chill wind rattled the plastic sheets that covered rows of scaffolding, they handed bricks from one to another, onto the platforms and into the hands of dozens of bricklayers ranged around the outer walls. Teenaged girls in hardhats and workboots, white haired women in rain slickers and workgloves, men skilled in construction and people with only strong backs and willing hands to lend, they mixed mortar, cut soffits, burned woodscraps, raked topsoil, laid sod, directed traffic, cooked food or kept the coffee hot. All day Saturday and well into the night they worked, with a quiet harmony that was amazing to behold. No one appeared to give any orders, there was no shouting or disagreement, and yet row by row the bricks went up, the sod went down and the hall began to take on a finished look.

By Monday, only a small number of workers remained on the site to put the finishing touches on the building. There were still doors to be hung, lights to be installed, and trim to be applied, but that too was proceeding swiftly.

Watching the speed and harmony with which the building went up, it was impossible not to be impressed by how much a group of people can accomplish when they tackle a project with common purpose and a willingness to give.

Of course, the people who built the new meeting hall share a religious bond that has no parallel in the wider, secular community. But the success of their project can serve as a reminder of what might be done in Haliburton and elsewhere to build a better community if people were willing to give a weekend of their time and a few dollars out of their pockets to accomplish it.

Just about any labour-intensive project a community could imagine could be completed if the spirit of shared purpose that once burned more strongly in all of us, could be rekindled. The raising of the meeting hall proves that it is still possible for many hands to accomplish much when they work together, even if only for a weekend.

A celebration

The annual awards night at Haliburton Highlands Secondary school is first and foremost, a celebration of accomplishment. It is evening to recognize and encourage the qualities of hard work and determination that young people must show if they are to be successful not only in the academic world, but in other aspects of their lives. It is also and evening that pays tribute, in a less obvious but no less important way, to education itself. In a society where excellence is often misunderstood or resented, where the noble desire to treat everyone fairly and with respect is sometimes misconstrued with the false assumption that everyone is the same, it is important to remember that coming out on top by fair and honest effort is still a noble goal. And, too, the honours and awards night is a celebration of the generosity of local businesses, individuals and organizations who believe in building a stronger community by helping young people to fund their higher education. It was a night when the whole community could share the pride of parents and students, a night when excellence, generosity and a belief in the power of learning were equally celebrated.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our readers write...

To the Editor:

As a teacher of 12 and 13 year olds, I agree totally with your comments re: the violence in stories written by young people. After 18 years, I have not noticed more students writing violent stories, but the depth of violence is greater. In my class, the difference between suspense and violence is stressed and I will not accept the latter.

I was therefore very disappointed to see, on the same page as your comments, the unnecessary details of the atrocities committed by a cult leader. The whole article seemed to be of a tone not normally set by the Echo.

If we are truly concerned about the media's influence on young minds, then the local newspaper, which is read by many of them, should avoid unnecessary gruesome details in its reporting.

Sincerely,
L. Carter

Insecurity

To the Editor:

It is important to me to locate and raise my family in a low density residential area. In the past ten years we have placed this need well ahead of careers, promotions, increased wages, new cars, vacations, etc., and it has been a difficult dream to realize at times. To date, the Village of Minden has provided us with the best opportunity possible to enjoy a rewarding family life where we have luxuriated in the wholesome atmosphere of a low density, village setting. Sadly, most families in Ontario do not have the opportunity we in Haliburton County delight in. It was by luck that we came here and by choice that we have remained.

When we purchased our home in 1979 we checked at the Municipal Office in Minden to confirm that the property we wished to buy was surrounded by residential uses. When by-law 86-26 was enforced, it supported this; all adjacent properties were zoned residential, first class and/or rural uses. When Minden adopted its Official Plan, (this document is a guideline for the next ten years, direction for the future of the village) the area surrounding our home was labelled 'Village Residential'. According to the Standards printed in the Official Plan, the maximum density permitted in 'Village Residential' is 17 units per hectare. Having read this plan we felt confident that our chosen life-style would be maintained during the coming decade.

Now I find myself subjected to the possibility of living directly across the road from a 112-space parking lot and a busy intersection. This notion is completely offensive to me. If this proposal (Ray Moore's condominiums) becomes reality I will find it necessary to re-locate my family.

How will I decide where to purchase a home in Anson, Hindon and Minden? To the best of my knowledge, the only planning documents Minden currently has are By-law 86-26 (specific zoning and residential densities as they were at the time the plan was drafted), and our Official Plan (a 'broad brush' vision of the future for A.H. & M. in which all residential distinction is made as to what densities of housing are permitted where). Although I was familiar with both of these documents, they did not prepare me for what is about to take place in my neighbourhood now. Is there some plan that I don't know about? Are there any residential, first density areas in the Village of Minden which are targeted to remain such in years to come? Are there some residential areas which are targeted for multi-unit housing in the near future? Does Minden have an unwritten plan for various residential densities? How can a rate-payer acquire this knowledge? I need to know this if I am to make a secure investment in my next home. Is this information available only to those involved in development? Can a home buyer purchase property in Minden and feel that their investment is secure?

Sincerely,
M.A. Wilson

THE ECONOMY, AS FAR AS Haliburton County is concerned, should be good for at least another year. An electrician told me that he had enough work ahead for his men for another year and a half and many of the building contractors tell me that they have plenty of work ahead of them. Things could get better and better with more and more people moving into the area and building new homes here. The building trade will get another shot in the arm in the year ahead when people start to build new homes and businesses hoping to have them constructed before the proposed GST tax comes into effect.

I was walking by Dot and Rolly LeTourneau's home on Highway 121 across from Haliburton Marine one night recently when I noticed that Rolly was waving for me to come in. When I arrived at his house he told me that he had a couple of friends in the back yard that he wanted me to see. Standing on his back deck, he pointed out two fawns standing not 30 feet away. Rolly told me that they visit him regularly and they are so tame you can get very close to them before they begin to move away. Many other people have told me that they have noticed deer on their lawns recently, especially outside of the village. The deer herd seem to be quite plentiful this year.

We are pleased to note that North Steel, a small industry located in Ingoldsby, Ontario, has a contract to do the steel work on the new addition to the Civic Hospital in Peterborough. Owner Hans Walter tells me that local men working on these projects will be bringing money back to be spent here in Haliburton County.

This coming Tuesday evening is Hallowe'en, an annual event that has been with us for many years. One has to stop and wonder if it won't be much longer before Hallowe'en as we know it could become a thing of the past. Each year it would appear that fewer children are making the trip to the various homes for treats. There is certainly a tremendous difference between hallowe'en now and what is used to be like a few years back. Gone are the days when the children of the village would gather to start a march to each and every store with a cry of "trick or treat" and shell out. The owner of the store would usually have treats for one and all, and then the group would move onto the next store and carry out the same procedure. This Tuesday is another Hallowe'en so let's treat it as a night for the children and a night of fun, not a night for noise and vandalism.

I think we would all have to agree that it's hard to believe just how fast the times flies. It's also hard for most of us to imagine that it's just exactly two months until Christmas. Speaking on the subject of the upcoming winter, weather reports which have been issued seem to tell us one story one day and the very opposite of that on another occasion. Some seem to think that we could be in for a hard winter with plenty of snow while others say that we will have very little snow this winter. For the sake of business and the economy here in Haliburton County all we can do is hope and pray so that we will have a good snowfall for snowmobiling, skiing and everything else that goes along to make it a healthy economy here this winter.

We would like to welcome Willi and Brigitte Aschenbrenner to the Community. They purchased Joan and Ken Alger's property on the McBrien Road in the Maple Lake area. The family come from the Hamilton area where they owned a plumbing business. They are starting a plumbing business in this area to be known as Brenner Plumbing.

For the past few weeks a grey and white rabbit has been making its home on the shores of Head Lake, across from the Silver Maple Motel. If you are walking by this area you will notice this friendly rabbit walking along with the ducks, who by the way are there in large numbers. I get the opinion that everyone in the community wishes that the owner of this cute little rabbit would come and pick it up and take it home. Some concerned citizens tell me they are afraid that a stray dog or some other animal might eventually destroy it.

Here, there and everywhere... Greg Brown of Greg Brown Construction is underway with the footings for his new building on the corner of Maple Avenue and Victoria Street in Haliburton... Wilberforce Minor Hockey's Hallowe'en Dance is slated for the Lloyd Watson Centre this coming Saturday evening, October 28th starting at 9:00 PM... Julie and David Gray visited San Francisco recently... Local hockey experts told me this week that the Haliburton Midget Hockey Club should prove to be a real powerhouse this winter. They knocked off their most recent opponent Woodville on Friday night by the score of 7-0... Some friends of mine told me that Barb and Doug Hodgson and Betty and Len Salvatori were vacationing in the San Francisco area at the time of the earthquake... Mrs. Sylvia Holland is visiting with relatives in Edmonton, Alberta... Carol Finn has returned home following a visit to Halifax.

SIX OR SEVEN WEEKS ago, when I wrote about animals and people, I skipped an item on racing pigs, and it turned out they were a big attraction at the Kilmount Fair.

Another item I had passed over was about 'Bossy Bingo,' because it was around a lot a year or so ago, and then sort of dried up, so to speak. But, sure enough, it turned up on TV the other night.

It seems a Peterborough Collegiate needed a fundraiser, as schools so often do in these times of shrinking government support, and so they divided the football field into one-square-yard sections, and sold them for a buck each to one and all. Wander on the field, and the owner of the square first embellished with a cow flap wins the big cash prize.

Some one else who is getting a cash reward for a 'prize' idea involving cows is Jim Wells in Elmira, Ontario. He has come up with, believe it or don't, rubber boots for cows.

A boot based on his design, with suggestions from local veterinarians, is built by Kaufman Rubber in nearby Kitchener, and in black rubber with a bright yellow trim, it looks a bit like a shorter version of a fireman's boot.

It seems that cows get cut hooves a lot, and walking around in their flop-filled fields leads to infections. Milk can't be sold if the animal is on antibiotics, and this is turning out to be a useful — and at $50 each — a profitable solution.

And, while we all hear about farmers going out of the business, there does seem to be some money out there somewhere to encourage inventors. Big sales are predicted for a Robotic Sow that feeds piglets for a mere $14,000 outlay.

It seems that some momma pigs are unwilling or unable to feed their young, and some of the little ones are orphaned at or shortly after birth. A London inventor has come up with the high-tech solution — a blue plastic box with 16 plastic nipples. It calls the little ones once an hour with computer-generated grunts, developed from actual tape-recorded sow talk that the piglets understand to mean 'dinner time.'

The machine is based on a tiny heat pump that NASA developed for space vehicles, and is blue because, according to their animal behavior expert

WHEN I WAS IN HIGH SCHOOL some empty-seven years ago, I labored for three years with the French language. I translated, grammaticalized, and read, and wrote. But all I ever got from it was the tale we recited by rote until it was forever imprinted in our New York brains.

J'entre dans la salle de classe. Je regarde au tour de moi. Je vois les élèves et le professeur. Je dit, "Bonjour," au professeur. Je prends ma place, j'ouvre le livre. Let me assure you that not one of these phrases came in handy during our seven days in la belle province of Quebec. Well, we did say "Bonjour," a lot. And "merci." And "Toilette?"

Luckily for all of us, the French-speaking citizens almost everywhere we went all understood at least a smattering of English. And just in case they didn't, Ed was very careful to speak just a little louder and use his hands a lot to help them understand.

We must have done alright, because we didn't get any surprises when the meals came. What we did get was pampered to the umph degree. Someone had imported Europe for us. And we loved it. Dinners by candle light. Accompanied by harp music and French songs. Walking the evenings through old Quebec City. The shops, the old buildings, the funicular, the cold wind blowing off the seaway.

We compared caesar salads, crepes, and french toast from town to town. My favorite desert was some nougatty-caramel confection called fufu la creme. We agreed unanimously that the best place on the tour was l'auberge St. Simon. We pulled up to this hotel with its doubtful exterior. They were expecting us. We walked through the door into a time warp, ending up in 1925. It was incredible. There were old, long bath tubs in the bedrooms. There was a bonafide water closet. Antiques everywhere.

Then the host, owner, chef fed us. It was one of those long relaxing several course meals. It was exquisite. We spent the night in beds that were just a tad shorter than we were, and slept soundly. We even got breakfast and European coffee. Real crepes with scraped maple sugar on top.

Even driving through the mountains was wonderful. The ferry boat ride happened on a sunny day. It only rained when we were inside. And we managed to spend eight days together with another couple in close proximity without any major kerfuffles. In fact, we started considering a trip to Halifax. The only thing that wasn't perfect was the lack of whale sightings. We sort of saw one beluga whale, we think. But the sighting was so brief, it could have just been wishful thinking.

So, I guess we'll have to go again.

LEONA CARTER MAKES a good point in her Letter to the Editor this week, and it's one the Echo struggles with from week to week—when do you draw the line between a public's need to be informed, no matter how awful that information is, and sensationalism?

Her letter refers to two of last week's stories: My column on the violence in some of the fairy tales, and a violent tale of a cult just south of the county at Burnt River. Young, impressionable minds will read the latter story about mutilation and horror, Mrs. Carter says, and the newspaper has a responsibility not to add to the violent messages they are already receiving from television, movies, and some popular magazines.

I agree with her, and yet I still included all the gory details in the cult story. These people had spent some time in the county, selling vegetables and bread from their truck often parked in front of the high school. And Burnt River is close enough to sometimes be considered local.

The point I wanted to make by including the violence was that we can't pretend such things do not happen in small towns, that it's only big cities which have such worries. Secondly, what does it say about the female cult members' impression of themselves when they became so infatuated with the leader they allowed him (probably with some protest, no doubt) to mutilate them, control them, and is now revealed, make not a peep to the police when one of his other "wives" is murdered?

Just because the information wasn't nice, should it not be included in the newspaper? Or can we censor news events so as not to hurt the sensibilities of our readers? I still don't have an answer.

Here's some other questions we ask:

When someone is killed or seriously injured, either by accident or intent, should we do as other papers and go to the family's house to "pick up" a picture of the victim? (They're called pick ups—the next time you see these pictures in the Star or Globe, remember that some poor reporter had to ask the family for them.) The Echo doesn't, not only because we don't want to intrude at a time of grief, but also because I feel that readers who don't know the victim won't learn anything from a photograph. Pictures of a young person who was killed will elicit pity and sorrow, but is it worth the price of intruding on the family's grief. However, perhaps families would like to have the picture in the paper.

Other newspapers have police radios so they can arrive at the scene of an accident or fire at the same time the emergency crews do. Pictures of smashed up cars, victims being loaded into ambulances, the shocked looks of passersby make good news photos. If an Echo photographer happens to be going by an accident, rest assured he or she will take a picture. (Although I didn't once because I was too shocked by the image of the dead man being lifted out of his car to even think of taking pictures.) And the pictures will probably make the front page. Is there a difference between an actively-pursued accident picture, and one that was simply chanced upon?

Newspapers must reflect their communities, but as we all know, there are many layers in that community. Usually we go for a broad-based approach, and we don't try to feed the hunger for sensationalism as other papers do. Yet again, how do you draw the line between sensationalism and legitimate news which just happens to be sensational?

I thought of this again last week when listening to a CBC Radio Sunday Morning feature on the Mount Cashel investigation in Newfoundland. All week I had heard snippets of Shane Earle's testimony on the newscasts. While horrific in nature, it dealt mainly with fondling and intimidation. How shocked I was on Sunday to learn the assault also involved sodomy and violence. The daily news shows, sensing that this isn't the sort of thing you want to hear about when you're preparing dinner, selectively chose the less-sensational testimony. However, that doesn't allow you to see the true depth of the tragedy at the orphanage. If it wasn't nice for those poor boys, should it be any nicer for us?

I doubt we'll ever reach a conclusion which pleases everyone. We will keep on trying though, with the help of your comments. I appreciate Mrs. Carter writing down her thoughts on the impressions the Echo's stories leave on readers. A newspaper should not always have pleasing its readers as its main goal, yet encouraging such dialogue is always a top priority.

DID I EVER TELL YOU about how I learned what the Christian practice of Holy Communion is all about? This practice of "The Lord's Table" or Eucharist (lit. Thanksgiving) was always a bit confusing to me until I became a prison chaplain.

In those early days of being the Protestant Chaplain, serving prisoners of all denominations, church services were held on Sunday morning in an assembly hall. We had no chapel and only a portable altar that was wheeled onto the stage each Sabbath day. Turned one way it was Protestant; wheeled around it was R.C.

Chapel attendance was mandatory. Young men were shaken out of their escape of sleep by a P.A. system announcing "church parade", marched to the assembly hall which still wreaked of stale cigarette smoke from the Saturday night movies, seated in formal rows and then locked in with the chaplain to worship God!

I did the best I could with spirited music, down-to-earth prayers and short, story-filled sermons. It was tough going. To make matters worse, some prisoners began to pressure me to serve Holy Communion in that hostile environment. I resisted for some time until I realized that some men came from church traditions that held the Eucharist every Sunday. I had to serve their needs as well as others.

So, I finally decided to do it. We had no communion wares, so I borrowed chalice and paten, small cups and trays from a local United church and covered it all with usual starch-white table cloths of that tradition.

Communion or the Lord's Table could not be required, so I arranged for this service to be voluntary, much to the disapproval of the superintendent. On the appointed Sunday morning, with my lovely white cloths covering the sacred objects I waited with much trembling.

Forty men came jostling into the hall as those Anglicans who had pressed for this service, they were some of the Toughest "Dudes" in the "joint". Anxious that the table not be desecrated, I preached long and hard about the meaning of the Last Supper and explained in detail its origin and profoundly religious nature. The men waited, impatient, hardly listening.

When I invited them to the Eucharist, all of them

IF ONLY THERE was the opportunity to participate in a program like Camp Wanakita's Sunship Earth during my school days.

What better way to teach a generation of young people brought up on the fast-paced images of Sesame Street and who now consume a steady diet of rented horror movies and heavy metal music than with this exciting program which offers creative stimulation?

Using elements of fantasy and adventure, Sunship Earth is geared toward teaching Grade 6 students about the roles of all living things and how each relate to one another. The students are passengers on a ship which orbits the sun over a four-day program (as opposed to the real-life orbit of Planet Earth, which takes 365 days).

In trying to conjure up memories of science class during my school days, what comes to mind is boredom. Not that science didn't interest me—to discover answers to the many mysteries of life is exciting. Somehow, colouring in photocopied diagrams of the stamens of flowers just didn't thrill me.

Of course, the success of a course depends on the teacher, and I did have a few instructors who presented lessons on science with the energy it deserves.

Some teachers have the talent to bring lessons to life. Dinosaurs raise their weary heads, the difference between vertebrates and invertebrates is made obvious and, yes, even diagrams of flowers smell as sweet as the real thing.

It's probably these creative teachers who are so enthusiastic and supportive of Sunship Earth (and it seems the program's supporters are legion).

Since 1986, Grade 6 students from the Hamilton, Durham and Peel school boards have been visiting Camp Wanakita for four days and three nights of exciting activities. And students of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School

But it wasn't until earlier this month that students of Haliburton County had the chance to participate in the program themselves. With financial assistance from the Minden Rotary and Legion, the Grade 7 students of Archie Stouffer Elementary School paid the $150 each fee and took part in the program when a late opening was found in the schedule.

And Sunship Earth helped instill an enthusiasm about environmental issues in both teachers and students alike.

Area residents should be proud that such an innovative program as Sunship Earth is taking place each fall right here in the Haliburton Highlands, especially since Camp Wanakita offers one of only two such programs available in Canada.

Perhaps this trial with Archie Stouffer students will convince the school board to fund the program for all Grade 6 students in the county. Sunship Earth offers students a magical, mystical way of learning. It's got everything you need. Satisfaction guaranteed.

TEN MEN ROAMING across acres of bush, then thrust together in close quarters for day after day, night after night. What kind of men were they? Did the rough edges of human, and particularly male, nature begin to show under these conditions of confinement? The moose hunters had arrived and she was about to meet the entire gang for the first time.

All were new to her except their leader. She had met him and his wife a few weeks previously. A Big, seemingly mild-mannered man, he had sat in her livingroom, chatting about politics and business. His wife, an attractive, well-educated woman of Polish had not fit the image of the 'moose widow'. Now he was about to be seen under completely different circumstances; he and nine others in a cabin bordering Algonquin Park.

Lights winked through the trees as she and her husband approached the cabin. Trucks loaded with ATVs filled the yard and from the door came loud male voices and the banging of fists on wood. Her husband knocked before entering, then pushed open the door. Circled around a large kitchen table sat the men. The banging heard a minute earlier had been the thump of playing cards hitting the table.

Redmen will face the test in quest to capture title

The HHSS senior Redmen football team will face a tough test this Friday as they meet I.E. Weldon in the final game of the regular season. The Redmen must beat Weldon to ensure at least a second place finish in the league and a playoff spot, after dropping a 13-7 decision to Fenelon at home last Friday. The loss have Fenelon and Haliburton identical 3 and 2 records, but left Fenelon in sole possession of first place based on the victory.

If the Redmen defeat Weldon and Fenelon defeats LCVI, the winners will meet for the Kawartha West title in Fenelon. If LCVI wins, the playoff would pit Haliburton against LCVI in Lindsay. A loss by the Redmen and the Fenelon Falcons this Friday would put all four teams in a tie with identical 3 and 3 records.

The possibilities are an indication of how close the competition has been among the four teams in Kawartha West this season, with no team able to dominate from week to week.

The Redmen got off to slow start against Fenelon last Friday, perhaps hampered by low temperatures and rain that turned the HHSS field into mud, particularly at mid field.

Fenelon marched in for a touchdown early in the first quarter, booted the convert, and added two field goals in the second quarter to lead 13-0 at the half.

In the second half the Redmen got into the game and scored six points when Brent Flood blocked a punt on the 35 yard line and scampered in for a defensive touchdown. Jeff Feero kicked the convert, leaving the Redmen trailing 13-7.

In other games the Redmen have come back from deficits to win, staging fourth quarter heroics on the ground and in the air, but there was no repeat performance on Friday, and they had to settle for a loss.

Brent Flood and Mark Robinson paced the Redmen with outstanding two-way efforts.

The season standings will be decided this Friday as the Redmen travel to Lindsay to meet I.E. Weldon, with a 3 p.m. start.

Juniors win big

The Junior Redmen have been coming on strongly in the late season, and last Friday they looked impressive indeed, rolling to a 43-0 victory over the Fenelon Falls Falcons. The win ensured the juniors of a playoff spot against LCVI.

Chris Greenfield led the scoring with three touchdowns on passes from Jay Hughes. Craig Harding, Mark Klages and Jerry Cooper also scored touchdowns. Greenfield went in for two, two point conversions, and Peter VanLeuween booted three singles.

The juniors also had three TD's called back.

They'll see action this Friday against I.E. Weldon in the final league game, and their prospects look strong to capture the Kawartha West title.

Haedicke a tower of scoring strength as soccer Redmen beat Lindsay, 3-2

The Kawartha West championship will be on the line this Wednesday when the HHSS senior soccer team takes to their home field against the Fenelon Falls Falcons. The Redmen defeated LCVI 3-2 last Wednesday to finish the regular season with seven points and tied with Fenelon Falls in the standings.

Since Haliburton netted more goals than Fenelon during the regular season, the Redmen will have home field advantage for the sudden death championship game on Wednesday.

Jan Haedicke was once again a tower of scoring strength for the senior Redmen, netting two of the team's three goals in their win over LCVI. The other Redmen goal was scored by Cecil Smith, whose tireless playmaking has been a factor in the team's success this year.

The Redmen were short three of their regular starters last Wednesday, including Chris Holliday-Rhodes who is out for the season with an eye injury, and Marc Sorenson, who was forced to sit out the game because of a red card infraction the previous week.

Classes will finish early on Wednesday so students can lend their support from the sidelines to the senior Redmen's bid for the league championship. Game time is 2 p.m.

Juniors battle hard

Playing a man short, the Junior Redmen put up an excellent fight against first place LCVI last Wednesday but were too exhausted to stop a five goal onslaught in the second half. The Redmen held off the LCVI attack in the first half, but with two back-up lines to draw on, the visitors eventually wore the Redmen down.

It was a disappointing finish to the season for the junior boys, who have improved their game with each match.

Among the outstanding players in last Wednesday's game were David Carr, Nico Haedicke, Darren Parsons and Jamie Keefer.

The juniors will be cheering from the sidelines this Wednesday as their senior counterparts vie for the Kawartha West title.

Girls field hockey team extends a streak of shutouts

The HHSS girls field hockey team extended their shutout streak to eight straight games with scoreless draws against Adam Scott, and Peterborough Collegiate in Kawartha competition in Peterborough on Monday.

Haliburton had hoped for a win against Adam Scott in the opening game, but neither side had many scoring chances, and the game ended in a 0-0 draw.

The game against Peterborough Collegiate was marked by wide open play. Haliburton had better scoring opportunities than their opponents, and in fact, did score a goal, only to have it called back because it went in off a defender's foot, a rule violation.

PCVS defeated Adam Scott 2-0 to advance to the final against Kenner Kenner Collegiate, who had defeated Thomas A. Stewart in the other pool.

Haliburton lost 1-0 to Thomas A. Stewart in the consolation final, the only goal scored against the local girls in Kawartha play this year.

The second place finish in their pool on Monday means the HHSS girls will advance to COSSA championship play.

Curry motormen pull through and trounce Emmerson Lumber, 11-2

THIS WEEK IN THE M.H.L.

by Chip Trueman

WE HAVE ALL HEARD the phrase "What a difference a day makes". Well if that is true you can imagine what a difference seven days would make. Curry Motors certainly found out on Sunday night. As you may recall, the motormen were trounced last week by a score of 7-1. Well this week it was time for them to do some trouncing of their own. Emmerson Lumber were the victims, as Currys went on the offence hammering the green shirts 11-2. Brian Mullholland and Barry Boice take most of the credit for the high score as they each recorded hat tricks on the night. Other motormen goals came from Ron Yake, Dave Hicks, Curry Whittaker, and Hardy Craft. Emmerson Lumber, who have now dropped their first two games, left all the scoring up to Tim Davies. He picks up two points for his efforts.

In other action, Roberts-Austin Fuels continued their winning ways, by defeating Bishop and Wilson 6-4. Unfortunately I did not get to watch all of this game, but judging by the game sheet summary it looked like quite a war. Six penalties were called all together. As in most arenas this type of action really got the fans excited. One onlooker remarked that "those darn referees need glasses". For shame Connie, for shame !!! Anyway when they weren't in the penalty box most of them were scoring goals. Greg Bishop, Dean Curry and Rick Wood supplied the points for Bishop and Wilson. For Roberts-Austin it was Dan Ambridge and Yvon Gravel scoring a pair each, followed by Kevin Phillips and Darrell Stamp.

Haliburton Lumber remains winless this season as they dropped another close one. This week it was at the hands of Youngdale's Fuels. The lumbermen definitely had their chances, but Scott Burke put on a fine performance in the net. At the other end of the rink Steve MacIntyre kept the score respectable, stopping some tough shots as well. Youngdale's goals came from Jeff Howe, Bernie Upton, Mike Rae, Ernie Bain, and Dennis McKee. Rob Abbs, Rod Sisson, Peter Fearrey and John Ballantyne put Haliburton Lumber on the board. Youngdale's Fuels are now one and one on the season recovering well from last week's outing.

Wait sports fans, what's that bright orange glow? It's a bird, it's a plane, no it's Vasey Insurance and their new sweaters. Hey dude, that colour is most excellent!!! You needed a pair of shades to watch this one folks. Elstone Motors were at a disadvantage, but still managed to squint their way to victory. The motormen continued their win streak taking this game 9-7. Elstones are 2 and 0 on the year. Accounting for the nine were Steve Roberts, Gary Burch, Andy Hodgson, Rob Craigen, Steve Wilcox and Ed Davis with the hattrick. Scoring for the Broad Street Brokers were Joe Roberts, Glen Fick, Tom Ballantyne, and Chris Hodgson netting three.

The Junior Redmen overwhelmed Fenelon Friday, but seniors lost 13-7

Sorenson noses out area runners

Haliburton high school senior Marc Sorenson was the top finisher among six local students who competed in the Kawartha cross country running championships at Peterborough's Trent University last Wednesday. Sorenson, a member of the HHSS senior soccer team, finished 16th out of a field of about 70 runners in the 7,800 metre event. Sorenson's time of 32:39 qualified him to advance COSSA competition.

Other HHSS students who competed at the 7800 metre distance were Daren Byers, who was 28th in 34:32; Justin White, 52nd in 42:39, and Pat Casey, 54th in 43:25.

Matt Brydon turned in a personal best of 22:32 in the midget boys 4900 metre event, finishing in 46th place.

In the junior race, Haliburton's Cameron Young finished 47th with a personal best time of 29:55 over the 6500 metre distance.

Sunship Earth makes Minden students zoom

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

"When we try to pick out anything by itself, we find it hitched to everything else in the universe."
—John Muir (1838-1914)

FASTEN YOUR SEATBELT and get ready for the most incredible journey you may ever encounter—a four-day voyage on Sunship Earth which takes passengers millions of miles through space in a trip around the sun. But be forewarned: Some crew members aren't quite prepared for this journey and have a lot to learn in order to maintain the ship's life support systems.

Armed with passports which feature the above quote by conservationist Muir, the Grade 7 students of Minden's Archie Stouffer Elementary School boarded Sunship Earth from its take-off point at the Camp Wanakita Outdoor Centre at Lake Koshlong earlier this month. And, although they never actually left the ground, program co-ordinator Dave Newnham says what these students experienced will instill a greater understanding and appreciation of the Earth and its environment.

"The kids are told that the Sunship is in trouble, and it's their job to make a difference," says Newnham. "They have to successfully pilot the ship by working together. Co-operation is very important."

The sunship, you see, is actually the planet Earth, which travels around the sun every 365 days. The Sunship Earth program condenses this experience into a four-day stint at the camp where activities are geared toward teaching students to take positive environmental actions and build lifestyle habits which are harmonious with the life support systems on Earth. (At the end of the program, students are encouraged to break a bad habit which has negative effects on the environment).

The Sunship Earth program at Camp Wanakita (a branch of the Hamilton/Burlington YMCA) is only offered at one other camp in Canada, and does utilize the beautiful 1,000-acre property of Camp Wanakita in teaching an appreciation for nature. During Time Out, students have the opportunity for archery, herbertism, scavenger hunts, Frisbee golf, horseshoes, trampoline, and other games. But most of the program is far from average.

Fantasy

Fantasy is the most integral aspect of the Sunship Earth program, with counsellors donning an array of costumes (flowing black wizard robes, frizzy rainbow Afro wigs, false nose and glasses). And the camp's autumn staff each takes on a name which suggests something natural such as Birchy, Pebbles, Cloud, Bug, and Eddy (as in a river), says Newnham (a.k.a. Catfish).

Before boarding the Sunship, students line up, are fingerprinted and fill out an application for a passport they must carry along during the trip (yes, this is serious stuff). Inside this passport are concepts which correspond with Sunship Earth's environmental and ecological guideline formula—EC-DC-IC-A.

In this formula: E stands for Energy Flow (the sun is the source of energy for all living things), C for Cycles (the building materials of life must be used over and over), D for Diversity (differences in living things provide for the success of all life), C for Community (plants and animals live together in areas that meet their special needs), I for Interrelationships (all living things interact with other things in their surroundings), C for Change (everything is becoming something else), and A for Adaption (to survive, everything must fit how and where it lives).

After every activity, passengers each draw a picture which exemplifies a segment of this formula. "This helps reinforce the concepts so the kids will better understand what they've learned," says Newnham. "It helps make the activities more like learning experiences than games at camp." Each correct passport entry is stamped by the crew counsellor.

Passengers come across each activity while traipsing through the winding trails of the camp in groups of five or six—staff members disguised as Wizards pop in and out from trees, and members of the Sunship Monitor press are always prepared to ask questions and offer a further reinforcement of each lesson.

Students who think a lesson about the environment means learning (and soon forgetting) the names of trees, plants, and flowers soon discover this idea is way off base. Activities on Sunship Earth are far more creative than your average nature hike.

Touch The Earth is a wondrous fantasy segment, where passengers see the world from a bug's eye view after entering a shrinking machine; use magic paint to create a brilliant masterpiece; catch a shadow with a piece of poster board; and become bloodhounds (crawling along the trail and sniffing out discoveries).

Interest is also stimulated on all of three imaginative Sunship Earth Concept Paths—Forgotten Forest, Sunset Boulevard, and Blue Hawk Hollow—where students take part in unusual experiences such as crawling inside a giant leaf to learn first hand about the photosynthesis process; and hoisting pails in the Sun's Bucket Brigade to learn about the water cycle.

On route to Newnham's favourite activity, passengers are greeted with a message to keep quiet out of respect for a funeral service. Further along the path a fenced-in cemetery can be seen, where a tiny coffin lays open and empty, and headstones feature names such as Spruce Springsteen. It turns out this is a funeral for a dead leaf.

Through questioning by the counsellor, passengers soon discover the leaf will disintegrate and add nourishment to the earth, providing food for the trees. At this point the funeral turns into the joyous occasion—complete with noisemakers and hats—of a birthday party, celebrating new life. This encourages students to realize how all life forms rely on other living things.

Along the way to another activity, passengers are confronted with warning signs: KEEP OUT! GO BACK! STAY AWAY! This is the foreboding entrance to the forest of King Sneed, a nasty guy who believes all are independent and there is no relationship between living things. Passengers must disprove this myth by using examples from their surroundings (such as the message from the leaf funeral, for instance). In rebellion against King Sneed, the passengers sign a Declaration Of Interdependence.

EC-DC-IC-A provides magic formula for learning

This "game" not only emphasizes Sunship Earth's concepts, it also exemplifies just how involving the program's activities can be. Passengers never actually see King Sneed, yet they are enthusiastic about stopping him from spreading his harmful lies. "One time, for effect, we had a counsellor dress up as King Sneed and run through the forest," says Newnham. "We couldn't try that one again because the students ended up running after him and chasing him out."

Another important aspect of the Sunship Earth program occurs when each passenger retreats to his specially selected Magic Spot. Some relax, others write poetry. All reflect on what they've learned. During Quiet Time, right after lunch, students meet with their classroom teacher to review, clarify, and reinforce concepts.

Although this remarkable program for Grade 6 students has been offered at Camp Wanakita since 1986—involving students of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School as counsellors and students from the Hamilton, Peel and Durham boards—this month marked the first excursion for the young students of Haliburton County.

Members of the Haliburton County Board of Education have previously considered sending students on Sunship Earth, but at a cost of $150 per pupil, there has been some concern. Under the urging of a group of teachers because of a late opening in the Sunship schedule this year, the board agreed to send the Archie Stouffer students on a trial basis. These students had to raise their own funds, with help from the Minden Legion and Rotary Club.

Reinforcement

And, now that the students' incredible journey is over, it is the duty of their teachers to continue the reinforcement of the program's concepts and the EC-DC-IC-A formula. After such an elaborate, involving experience, it would be a shame if all information was lost.

One way of reinforcement is through a large, hollow globe which students fill with slips of paper where each has scribbled an environmental bad habit he has vowed to break. As Newnham says, it's fine to promise at the camp not to leave the water running while you're brushing your teeth. Whether you continue this practise at home is the monumental question.

As the passport reads: "Writing down a bad habit is easy/Talking about it is easier still/Wanting to change won't help on this 'Sunship'/DOING your part is the one thing that will."

Students are encouraged to be particular in choosing a bad habit to break. "You can't just say, 'I promise not to pick leaves off of trees and kill them,'" says Newnham. "Sure, the thought is nice, but it's not good enough."

Because Sunship Earth is such a dramatic and unusual way of teaching about nature, some parents and teachers have been wary when first hearing about the program, says Newnham. "They think it's some sort of a cult. Or that their children will come home turned into hippies."

But Newnham has never met anyone who has gone through the program and still remain skeptical. Most even manage to learn more than they ever did in college. Newnham says the program's goals of ecological understanding, environmental consciousness, and planetary and sensory awareness "all become crystal clear" to counsellors and staff who participate in Sunship Earth.

And, through a special ceremony on the passengers' third night, students are able to visualize a link between the EC-DC-IC-A formula and all the aspects of nature through the symbolic stringing of beads on a strip of leather. The first bead is white, representing Energy Flow in the formula, and this is followed by a yellow bead which represents the sun. Next comes another white, for Cycles, then light blue for air, white for Diversity, dark blue for water, white for Community, brown for soil, white for Interrelationships, green for plants, white for Change, red for animals, and white for Adaptation.

Through this simple ceremony, all of the learned concepts are tied together as this necklace is tied around each neck. Of course, that's the whole secret to Sunship Earth's magic, where the key to knowledge seems so complicated at first (with code names and a code formula). But the message is fun to absorb (through interesting activities), and eventually becomes as clear as a bell.

And before they leave, students are encouraged to spread the word upon their return and reiterate all they've learned on this magical mystery tour through the carefree wilds of Haliburton County.

Prize pie becomes hunter's delight

DOWN OUR ROAD

Sharon Lynch

Heads turned in their direction as they stood in the doorway. Then smiles and grins appeared on everyone's face as they were invited in. Immediately two chairs were brought and room made at the table for two more bodies.

The men were like kids just let out of school and about to start vacation. All shapes, sizes and ages, they sat hunched earnestly over the table or leaning back in their chairs in relaxed enjoyment. The card game soon ended as conversation took over. At first somewhat hesitant with a woman in their midst, this awkwardness disappeared quickly as they enjoyed the presence of two new faces. They had already spent two days in each other's company and ahead lay a full week. The addition of others was a pleasant diversion. They talked about last year's hunt, the impact of the weather and then conversation became more general. Personalities began to emerge as it soon became obvious who were the leaders, the jokesters and the strong, silent types. Good-natured fun was definitely the order of the day and they delighted in recounting practical jokes already played on each other.

One of the men kept an eye on the oven until the prize was revealed. An enormous shepherd's pie appeared and she and her husband were not allowed to refuse a taste. The 'taste' consisted of two large plates piled high with moose, beef, corn, onions, gravy and a topping of mashed potatoes as fluffy as any proud cook's. Suitably impressed, they asked who was responsible for this gently seasoned and flavourful repast. One of the wives had prepared it. In fact, the wife of each hunter had made a large dish the week before and these were the main meals for the week of hunting. Cabbage rolls, lasagna, chili and more, then men would eat well every night. It was the hearty fare that hungry people would want after being outside all day.

The meal finished, those on kitchen duty whisked away the dishes and in no time the kitchen was spotless. They obviously had a system and it worked. More joking took place and only once or twice did one of the men slip into somewhat raunchy language. This was immediately followed with an apology and sheepish glance in her direction. All in all, they were a friendly, fun-loving bunch who hated to see their guests leave. But five o'clock would come early and she and her husband knew it was almost the hunters' bedtime. They promised to return at the end of the week and left.

True to their word, they once again pulled into the crowded yard. It was a cold rainy evening, lightning flashed and a strong wind whipped the soggy leaves around their feet as they made their way to the door. An elongated shape pushed against a plastic tarp hanging from a beam between two trees. Bags of garbage were neatly piled by the door and the same raucous sounds emanated from within.

They were greeted like long lost friends and everyone had something to tell them. Socks hung over curtain rods, drying out after a wet day in the bush. Several days' growth of beard could be seen on the faces and the inevitable deck of cards lay discarded on the table set up in the living room. Despite protests, the guests were once again treated to platefuls of food. Then they all settled down to recap the week.

It had been a cold and wet one for the most part, but the enjoyment on the men's faces was evident. The next day was the last and despite the rain, they'd be out in the bush. One man described walking for several hours laden with layers of clothing, feeling the perspiration of this exertion against his skin as they tramped for miles to reach the appointed spot. Then once in their area, they had to stay very still and quiet so as not to give away their presence. Motionless, their overheated bodies would cool and in no time they'd be shivering from the cold as their clothing remained damp inside and out.

Midway through the week, their leader had seen a moose and had moved out into knee-high water for a shot. He had been successful and that was when the real work began. The water had a cost of ice that morning and as he waded in up to his waist to retrieve the animal, the cold brought tears to his eyes. "Don't let anyone ever tell you it's easy," he told them. That was his moose hanging in the yard and fatigue showed around his eyes as he recounted how it had come to be there. What happened if they got another one the next day, the last day before packing up and heading back to their wives, she wondered. Would there be enough time to do all that had to be done, to lug the animal out and prepare it for the trip back to the city?

A sudden spark of enthusiasm lit the tired hunter's face. "There's always time for that!" he said. Then standing and stretching his arms, he announced that it was time for bed. She and her husband said they had to leave and let the others get some rest as well. Although the remaining men declared they were still good for hours, their company took their leave, wishing them all good luck and safe hunting. As they backed their car out of the driveway, the lights in the cabin were already starting to go out.

It seems pigs like blue

from the University of Guelph, "A lot of research has been done on colors, and pigs actually like blue."

All this special attention may make cows and pigs seem to be like pampered pets, but when you see how pets are being pampered these days, farm animals still come out second best. I mean, how many of them can get a Visa card?

Well, you can get them for dogs and cats. Really. A Boston bank claims to be the first. Actually, the owner has to have the credit rating. But, while the account is held in the human's name, your cat or dog can have his name embossed on the special card so it comes out on the printer when you run it through.

The cards have unique and colorful designs: for dogs it has puppies, for cats it has a winsome pair of kittens, according to a press release from the bank. In fact they say the attractive design has been a key element in marketing the concept.

According to the bank's research, there are pets in 60% of American homes, and owners spend some $5.6 billion dollars on products and services for them. And there are new ideas coming along all the time.

For instance, a story explaining just what Kosher foods are, which ran in the Toronto Star earlier this month, broke the news that even though there is obviously no religious reasons for Jewish people to feed kosher food to their pets, kosher foods are expected to be available for dogs and cats in the very near future...

Another big item just hitting the market is pet insurance. The Boston bank offers a discount on one plan with its VISA card, and a Toronto firm has a deal with Patsy Bloom, a U.K. pet insurance outfit, that offers $2,000 in health insurance and $500 for an 'untimely death.' It also covers theft and straying from home.

Annual premiums run from $120 to $180, depending on the plan, and there is a $25 deductible on each claim. Cats get by with a 20% discount, as actuarial tables show they are less prone to illness than their canine cousins.

But perhaps I've been hasty in separating farm animals from their domestic cousins. After a recent letter printed in Ann Landers' column about a woman who saved her pet dog from choking on a piece of meat by using the Heimlich manoeuvre, she got another from a woman who had used it to save Izzy, her pet pig.

I guess one man's pork is another person's pet.

Unruly, but determined, convicts learn lessons in Table manners

AS OTHERS SEE IT

Bob Giuliano

jumped to their feet and pushing, shoving and joking about the wine, pressed around me and the clean white linens. They knelt, or stood and giggled and coughed to control themselves as I tried to serve them the bread and wine. I grew angry and frustrated at their behaviour, but contained my growing rage until all had been served, blessed and sent out the door. I did not greet them with my usual friendly handshake as they left. Something profound and meaningful had been violated at the Table and especially in me.

When the door slammed shut and the voices of laughing men faded, I stood in the back of the hall alone and whipped. As I looked down the long aisle at the lonely Table prepared for them it appeared to be covered with filth. The clean white smudged and dirty; the sparkling chalice stained and empty. My heart sank even further. I just sat down and stared at the dirty sight, angry and ready to quit.

As I sat in the quite, hearing the giggling men and seeing them push and shove at the Table in my memory, I remembered a story the Scottish Evangelist, Tom Allen, had told a group of us prison chaplains. Tom Allen and his people worked among the night people in the city of Glasgow. They began each night at about midnight and tried to bring the friendship of the church to prostitutes, drug addicts, and dealers, and all those who wander the city's streets when good folks go to bed.

Tom told us that early each morning, after talking to street people all night, he could hardly wait to get home to shower and bathe. He felt covered with the filth of degraded human lives. One night a cab driver told him that he had driven two prostitutes from Allen's meeting place to their homes. The Cabbie had overheard one woman say to the other, "When I talk to Tom Allen, I feel clean all over!"

Suddenly, I saw my lovely communion Table in a new light. It had, perhaps, been a place of cleansing. The starch white linens, the shiny cup had taken the filth of men and washed them clean. The Table, left dirty, like so many towels sent men away cleansed!

From that day on I served the Eucharist regularly. I invited sinners to it to be washed and cleansed to leave the secret shames and filth of their lives at the Table. I realized that the giggling and laughter was nothing more than the anxiety and uneasiness of young men who didn't know how to "behave" at the Table, but were nonetheless determined to be there. So I taught them the simple Table manners needed: how to kneel in confession; to extend our empty hands to receive new life and Spirit, to then stand tall and proud as God's sons, given the dignity of forgiveness and a love that could absorb all the filth of our lives into itself and set us free to begin again and again.

Eucharist, Holy Communion, The Lord's Table, whatever it is called, still has prisoners at it in my memory, received and loved and given in the liberty for life that is more a matter of the heart than one's prison of circumstances might allow!

THIS WEEK

Wiser generation share their insights at exhibit

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

IT'S LIKE A GATHERING of old friends. You might not know them all by name, but that isn't to say you can't recognize them. There's the lady who lives in the apartment next to your grandparents, and that old crotch owns the gnome's home on one of the back roads. Your retired piano teacher is there too—look how her back is still so straight. If only you'd listened to her warnings about slouchers!

And you know what? Upon closer inspection of the pictures lining the walls of the Rails' End Gallery, you realize it doesn't matter you've never met the people peering back at you. That doesn't stop you from knowing them.

They're like a collection of the Everyman—and Everywoman—of fiction. All have their own identities and tales to tell, yet each is interchangeable with the old people you've come to know and love. A dress, a gesture, a penetrating stare bring them into your own world.

The Octo Project: A Celebration of Age gives you a warm feeling, like the hug you got from your grandmother when you came to visit. It's a personable and personal show, in that it touches you in ways beyond its artistic value.

Dyan and the late Michael Jones have created a show which gives old people back the dignity sometimes lost when you're old enough to forget where you put your teeth or have a commode beside your bed at the nursing home. Each portrait subject was born in or before 1900 and wears his or her age like a badge of honour, knowing the price they've paid for it.

Somehow the Joneses have managed to make complete strangers into their friends; they then share that friendship with anyone who comes to view the exhibit at the gallery.

"These are real people, not just photos of old fogies," says Mrs. Jones, who will be at the gallery this week to talk to local school children about the exhibit. "I've really come to know these people, many have passed away."

So too has her husband. Michael Jones was an enrichment teacher in Kitchener when he got an overwhelming sense of mission to do this show. He wanted to photograph and interview old people as a way of reaching out to the young. Age's wisdom should not be wasted on the old.

The Jones started the project in January of 1987, with no help from government grants or agencies. Using either a 2 1/4" Hasselblad or 35mm camera, and a taperecorder, they captured the faces and words of 47 old people, most of them from Ontario. (Senior citizens seems a too-politicized term when talking about this exhibit.)

That June, Mr. Jones was in the hospital, having been diagnosed with terminal cancer. He died a short while later and it was up to Mrs. Jones to make the photos and words into an exhibit, and soon a book.

"This also has a completeness for me," Mrs. Jones said Monday as she waited for some Exten-dicare residents to arrive at the gallery for tea. "I put it together after my husband died yet we did the work together. It was a gift to him, a purpose to reach out to others."

The women in the show also gave her a gift. Mrs. Jones cried when she heard their tales of being widowed, and how they managed to raise their children alone and lonely. A few months later, when she was in the same position, she could draw upon their words and strengths. (Do you understand now one of the other reasons why this is a very personal show?—the Joneses' life also seems to reach out to you.)

The photographs are all very simple, most shot with either a black or white background. Beside them is a synopsis of the people's telling of their life's tale—"the words add warmth to the picture," Mrs. Jones says.

The words also link the subjects together. The Georges in Newfoundland and the Vancouver Indian princess both speak of simpler times, when you respected the land as the giver of life and sustenance. All were asked their secret to longevity, to which they replied the key is to be useful. "They all had a reason for living. There was no social assistance when they were young and the scraped through and made do. They have a very strong moral fibre."

While most were interviewed for two hours, after 20 minutes Joe Chase, then 100, got up and said he had to catch a bus. He had a social life to keep up with! Another honoured them by allowing to be interviewed on his shuffleboard day. (Marcel Pequegnat, who died a short while ago at 102 and is featured in the show, was Petra Pequegnat of Grass Lake's father-in-law, and he did his own income tax until he was 101.)

Their energy wasn't the only thing which shook away the Joneses' preconceived images. One elderly Japanese-Canadian was interred in a camp during World War Two. The Joneses expected him to be bitter and angry. Instead, he quite enjoyed those years. He played baseball every day and got away from his wife, who he wasn't getting along well with anyway. When he was freed, he moved east, became a landscape architect and retired a millionaire.

Later in the week, the Echo will sit in on one of the sessions with students, who are visiting the gallery this week to help blow away some of their misconceptions about old people. Part of the curator Elene Freer's ongoing Discovery Tours, it's one more way the show can reach out to people.

AT HOME: Resting at the Rails' End Gallery with pictures from her exhibit behind her, Dyan Jones exemplifies the relaxed feeling the Octo Project: A Celebration of Age provides for its viewers. Show ends Nov. 18.

In the corner of the exhibit room is a living room set up with antique furniture from the Haliburton Highlands Museum. While you're asked please not to sit on the furniture, there's an open invitation to step into the sitting room of these people who are gathered to greet you.

On the wall hangs Mrs. Jones's needlepoint depicting tion of Ecclesiastes, Chapter Three: To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under heaven: A time to be born and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted...

And to every gallery, there is a time to visit and share in the warmth its exhibit provides.

Students take a walk on the wild side of Nature

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

R. D. LAWRENCE MAY HAVE wanted to talk about the environmental problems facing our beleaguered planet, but the Grades 5 and 7 students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School were more interested in his exploits with wild animals.

What did he do when he saw his first shark? (Put it in a canvas bag and take it home.) What's the strangest animal he's ever seen? (A wolf eel with a head as big as a melon.) What do you do if you see a bear? (Do not run "and with a grizzly, you pray.") What's your favourite animal? ("My wife.")

Entranced by the thought of being as close to animals as Mr. Lawrence has during his lifetime of exploring nature, the students' questions kept coming and coming. Often they were putting themselves into Mr. Lawrence's shoes, although if they had experienced some of the same surprise visits the naturalist has described in his several books, one doubts they would have acted so calmly.

But before Mr. Lawrence indulged their curiosity, he first told them of some of the conclusions his studies have lead him to.

All plants and animals are living things, he began, regulated by the all-knowing rules of Nature. "Nature uses a type of intelligence that left alone, will ensure the survival of the planet indefinitely," he said.

Using an example of this intelligence, Mr. Lawrence said specialists have discovered "plants have the ability to signal they're under attack and allow other trees to prepare for viruses or infections."

Plants are not simply an economic commodity, to be harvested for man's gain, he said. "You cannot buy Nature, it's beyond price."

Humans make other mistakes when dealing with the animal world. In the course of his studies, Mr. Lawrence has swam with sharks, shared meals with a cougar, and tramped through acres of forests and deserts without using a gun for protection.

"If you enter the world of wildlife in a calm state, they will accept you; if you're fearful, they will attack you."

What happens if you run away from a dog, Mr. Lawrence asked the students. It will attack you, one of them replied. Biological predators respond to fear and the less harmful such as the skunk, at least physically, will only protect themselves if you're aggressive. Mr. Lawrence once shoed a skunk out of an apartment building using his hand as a guide, and the skunk gracefully accepted his prompting without a stink.

But human actions can also endanger the environment as a whole, Mr. Lawrence said. Then he asked what's environment, the word bandied about so frequently today. All the forest? No, that's only part of it. Everything on the planet? That's more like it.

And everything on this planet is connected to everything else, he said. You can't use an aerosol spray without damaging the ozone layer. Chemicals are polluting our rivers and oceans, garbage is polluting our ground water.

"In a book I wrote in 1967 called The Poison Makers I warned about all these things," Mr. Lawrence said. "That's 22 years ago and nothing has happened. We have the knowledge but we're not putting it to use."

"We need attention from you because it's your future, it's your tomorrow. You've got to understand that your future is in the balance."

By the time the students become adults, 647 species of living things in North America might become extinct, Mr. Lawrence told them. That's an enormous loss to us, even though it's estimated there is between 5-million and 34-million species in the world.

"I don't want to depress you too greatly," Mr.

Lawrence closed his speech by saying. "What lies ahead is in your hands, you're the ones who will have to make the changes. Without you there is no future."

How can students help the environment, one girl later asked. "By learning about it. Write to your newspapers, express your concerns."

Who the speaker is

The first questions posed by the students dealt with just who this R.D. Lawrence fellow is.

"I was born at sea on an English boat in Spanish territorial water. My mother was Spanish, my father English. I was lucky to live in Spain with the Mediterranean on my doorstep and the mountains behind me. I was seven or eight when I started catching sharks. Some I befriended and fed by hand."

When he came to Canada, he lived in a small cabin in the north and from there, began his journeys that would take him all across Canada, by water and land. He's also studied wildlife in Africa and the Continent.

At his home in Haliburton County, he has two wolves, Tundra and Tiga, names from Nature and the North, where they came from. The Lawrences were in the Yukon when they came upon a man who had six wolf pups. Four had died because they weren't being fed properly, and the two survivors were taken home by the Lawrences.

Unlike Matta and Wa, two other wolves which Mr. Lawrence raised and then returned to the wild, Tundra and Tiga have remained with him. They're not pets, he stressed. "Wolves are not dogs—wild animals are not pets. You cannot tell a wolf to sit and it will sit." Sometimes they get into fights to establish dominance, but "immediately afterwards you make up. They don't hold grudges."

If the wolves were released in Haliburton County, Mr. Lawrence fears they would not get far past the hunters. Yet to release them into the wilds where they would be safe, would cost $20,000 to $25,000. Successful he may be, but he doesn't have that type of money. So, Tundra and Tiga live in a 1.25 acre enclosure and scare all the neighbours. Taking care of them means he and his wife, Sharon, are not able to indulge their wanderlust.

The male wolf weighs 110 pounds; the female 95. They eat the same meat the Lawrences do, but "less than a dog half their size." Wolves are not blood-thirsty as myth makes them to be, Mr. Lawrence says.

The world of books

Perhaps it was an aspiring burgeoning writer who asked Mr. Lawrence about his start in the book world. The "the first book that counts" was written in 1965, although prior to this he did write two novels in Spanish which he'd rather forget about. Fortunately, he used his mother's maiden name at the time.

His records for book-writing are six weeks and two years as the least and most amount of time it took him from start to finish. Some of the titles include A Natural History of Canada, The Zoo that Never Was, Voyage of the Stella, Secret Go the Wolves.

Then conversation turned to bears, and the scariest bear of them all, the grizzly. "There's an old saying which goes 'Where does an 800-pound grizzly bear sleep? Wherever the hell it likes.'"

The main thing with grizzlies is to stay as far away as possible for them. When Mr. Lawrence went hiking in grizzly country, he attached a bell to his waist to warn bears of his presence. His gun, if he takes one, isn't loaded. "When you take a gun it changes your personality. You have to meet Nature on its own terms."

Teacher Glen Carter ended the forum by thanking Mr. Lawrence and reminding the students that everything they do will have an affect on the environment they depend on.

HHSS accolades and recognition:

Honours and Awards Night highlights year

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

AS FRIENDS AND FAMILY gathered to pay tribute to their accomplishments, the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School students were reminded that as they endeavoured to broaden their knowledge, wisdom was far more important than a little learning.

"There are many foolish educated people," teacher John Stouffer said at Saturday night's Honours and Awards presentation. An education is not an end unto itself, therefore he encouraged them to seek wisdom instead.

"The challenge is to continue seeking excellence," said Principal Peter Forgrave. Everyone was gathered to "recognize achievements and honour accomplishments" earned during the years at HHSS. But the students should never stop striving to do their best.

Mr. Forgrave also wanted to acknowledge the debt the students and school owe to the people and organizations who have contributed the awards. With a total value of approximately $15,000, 135 awards were given out because other believe in the students.

"To all the donors we owe a special thank you," Mr. Forgrave said. "Your commitment helps make this high school a special place to be because you challenge students to be their best."

The names of honours students (achieving an average of 75 per cent or higher) and awards recipients are as follows:

Young writer to get plenty of experience as new columnist

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

BY THE TIME Erin Lynch is old enough to enroll in Ryerson's journalism program, the HHSS student will have enough experience to know if being a reporter is what she really wants to be.

But if her commitment to words is anything to judge by, there will be no doubt in her mind that a writing profession is her true destiny.

Starting this week, the 15-year-old Grade 10 student will be the second Lynch writing a column for the Echo. However, unlike her mother, Sharon's, fictional column, Erin will write about the very real happenings at the high school.

Quite naturally though, Erin's work will be influenced by her mother in that like mother, like daughter, writing is very important to her. (She also gets this from her father, who writes for Abitibi-Price's in-house magazine.)

"I've always enjoyed writing," Erin says. Tucked away in files in her bedroom are reams of stories she's written over the years. If she's not writing stories, she's writing either letters or in her diary.

Right now she's immersed in a story about a

COMMUNITY NEWS

Poppy campaign needs volunteers

LEGION NEWS

by Mabel Brannigan

Congratulations to the new members who were initiated at the last general meeting. Our membership is at an all-time high.

Youth Education Chairman Dave Sturtevant and Secretary Jack Bassett presented the Legion Scholarships at H.H.S.S. on Saturday night. Jan Shipley and Laura Bannan presented awards on behalf of the Ladies Auxiliary.

On Saturday the Haliburton Legion Pipe Band and several members attended the Remembrance Day service in Brechin at Branch 488. Legion's most important day of the year, November 11, is fast approaching. All Legionnaires will buy and wear a poppy. Last year our poppy fund was spent in the community with approximately $10,500 of poppy and Nevada funds going toward hospital equipment. This does not include other hospital donations. Poppy Chairman Ken Fieldhouse needs your help.

Sgt.-at-Arms, Grenville Draper is busy attending out-of-town services, and getting ready for ours. The fine rapport we have with all zone branches is largely because we have such great public relations people such as Grenville and Verna.

On Thursday, Branch 67, Lindsay Legion Seniors Chairman arrived with a busload of 40 members to spend a time of comradeship and fun at our Branch. Thanks to Wally, Jim, Bernie and all who helped me to make their day enjoyable.

Our dart team placed third in the zone tournament in Omemee. Congratulations Fred, on achieving first place in singles. In cribbage, our Ladies Auxiliary sent four teams to Cobocok to compete with the team of Irene Higgins, Joyce Ross, Bea James and Jan Crarey coming second.

Our branch is booming with activities as you can see. Lil has suggested that if enough members are interested, we charter a bus to Nashville. This is a great idea, and if other members have ideas for trips or other outings, please contact your Entertainment Chairman, Jim Tice, and Legion seniors will contact Legion Seniors Chairman Doreen Hawman.

Comrade Ken is dealing with a long sick list including Lottie, his wife. Your branch extends best wishes to all those members who are ill.

Branch President, Mabel extends her appreciation to those who assisted in the branch's first memorial service — that of Comrade Bill Foote.

The next general branch meeting will be Thursday, November 2, at 8:00 p.m., at which time Comrade Hugh Lester will donate a beautiful hand-crafted clock to the Building Committee for a ticket draw. The regular Ladies Auxiliary meeting will be October 30 with Zone Commander Marg McLean attending.

Faders celebrate their 46 years together

GUILFORD NEWS

by Eleanor Cooper

Hunters who have had some success over the moose season are: Lyle Sawyer and Sherry Sisson, Elwood and Larry Morrison. Those who hunted earlier and farther north included Carl Upton, Gerald Bain, Emile Duchene, Roger Bain and Brant Stamp.

The Faders and Redners gathered at Lakehaven Restaurant on October 20 when Violet and Harley Fader celebrated 46 years of marriage. Those who were with them were Sam and Dorothy Rivers, their daughter, Susan and Larry Allison, Claude and Bernice Fader, Charlie and Grace Morrison, Valand, Cheryl, Sarah and Rhonda Redner, Glenda and Garf Hutchings, Jonathan, Basle and Joan Cooper and Kathleen Owens. Congratulations to the Faders on their years of happy marriage.

In Centre news the president elect is Greg Cooper and the official election of officers is this Wednesday. Everyone is welcome. The downstairs room is in use again since the Golden age Quilters began their fall activity. They will have accomplished three quilts by the end of the season. As you will see by the Coming Events section, the Centre is available for various activities. Get in touch with a Centre representative and make use of the potential offered.

On Sunday we attended our grandson's baptism in North Bay. Adam Earl Cooper was baptized in Christ Church by Rev. Ellam. God-parents are Don Cooper of Woodstock, Alan Cooper of Burlington, Karen Blunden of Don Mills. Others present for the special occasion included Shireen's mother, Daphne Blunden, Vivin and Bruce Duncan, Kathleen, Thelma and Neilson Owens, Beth Cooper and Nora Morrison.

Honour students from this area this year are: Tricia Bain, Daughter of Gerald and Pat; Lynn, daughter of Nancy Bussey; Gesa, daughter of Wolfe and Elke Fluegel; Angela and Russel, daughter and son of Bob and Vicki Fraser; Tracy, daughter of Mike and Mary Simms; Melanie, daughter of Emile and Jane Duchene; Gerald, son of Kay and Perry Morrison; Jaro, son of Sid and Louise and Marilyn (of Toronto); Jimmy Hilliard, son of John and Olive; and Nora Morrison, daughter of Kay and Perry.

Tracy Simms won science, English and geography awards; Gesa Fluegel, Angela Fraser won mathematics awards; Angela Morrison won the Valerie Cowen Memorial Award; Angela Morrison won the West Side Jug City Achievement Award. Jim Hilliard's achievements were Technical and Auto Mechanics. Awards in Technical proficiency and accounting excellence were won by Rusty Fraser. Terri-Lynn Barry won the Legion Award in Family Studies. Shiela and Rick Sanders' son Chris (grandson of Bert and Louella Bryant) won the Russ Andrus Memorial Bursary. Advanced level geography award went to Charles Allison, son of Ralph and Shirley, for top marks in this subject in Year 3. Nora Morrison was awarded the Otto Bursary. We are all proud of you, students, and our best wishes go with you as you work here or away in college.

Elsie and Rae Gouette of Toronto were guests of sid and Louise Cooper on the weekend.

The first concert of the series, the Vienna Strings, will be presented at the Legion on October 29. This is delightful, dancing music. You can still pur-

by Winnifred Barnum

Hi Sr. League readers! Since it is Thursday again we have a tea party. The Harcourt Cross Roads group were scheduled to come but since they were unable to come The Martha Group Minden United Church came. We had a lovely lunch and thank them very much.

In the evening we had bingo with Glen Edwards (another first-time caller) who called a good game. We thank him and really appreciate his coming.

Friday afternoon we had Happy Hours with Fred Cooper, Sinc Russel and Doris providing the entertainment. We appreciate their music and really thank them.

Mable Buttery had her brother Walter Ackersblade to see her after lunch Friday.

Lucy Burgess had Mrs. Mary Wunker from Miners Bay to see her Saturday.

Rev. John Burgess had Kay and Grace England from Calvary Baptist Church, Burlington to see he and his wife Mary, a resident here who is not well. This was the last Church he had charge of before he came here.

May Horsley and Ina McGuire attended the dedication service of a stained glass window at St. Andrew's English Church in West Guilford, to the memory of Mark and Jane Sisson. Jane was the daughter of Nelson Barnum. The remaining nine children were all present and had donated the window in honour of their parents.

Rev. John Burgess conducted the Sunday evening service in the Chapel.

Doris Robertson is having a week's vacation, she is attending Sir Sandford College to learn "Willow Weaving".

Monday night we had Ena Marion and Ruth Rice to show movies: "Land of the Loon" and "Saint Marie Among the Hurons". We enjoyed the movies and thank the ladies for showing them to us.

Sunday afternoon May and Roy Cameron and Jackie Yateman, my niece, took Wilda LaRue and I out for dinner which was a pleasant change.

Friday night Verna Jarvis had the misfortune while sitting on he side of her bed

U.C.W. meeting to be November 1

CARNARVON NEWS

by Ann McKay

We've been away again, this time out to the Atlantic coast, through New York, Vermont and New Hampshire in our motorhome. We were accompanied by daughter Laurie and family, making a really delightful holiday. We were sorry to learn of the accident to George Kerr and send best wishes for a quick recovery. The Kerrs live at Kushog Lake. Bill McKay, Jim Harrison and Jack Harrison were away at Bill's cottage on Lake Matagami for a week. Mrs. Doris Redner has been away spending some time at her brother's, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis, in Kirkfield.

Wed. Nov. 1, the U.C.W. will hold a luncheon meeting at 12:30 at the home of Edith Burch.

There has to be something terribly wrong with our Ministry of Health, Hospitals have huge waiting lists; I myself have been booked in Kingston for heart surgery since first week in June and am still waiting.

Friends and relatives are invited to drop in to the C.E. Building on Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 PM to share some time and best wishes with Bob and Grace Cowan on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Congratulations!

Home for the weekend with parents were Tom Harrison of Toronto and Dave and Janet Moore of Oshawa.

Work has begun at the Junction of Highways 35 and 118 on what we are told is to be a service station.

Residents suffer unfortunate falls

Isabella Gardner also had the misfortune to fall and hurt her shoulder.

Tuesday afternoon we had a quiz session which we all enjoyed and gave our brains some exercise.

Maize McIntosh had her sister Peggy and two friends Clarence and Margaret Kanarr from Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan U.S.A. to visit her Tuesday afternoon.

Mark has returned from moose hunting in Thunder Bay area and was successful. We are glad you had a good trip.

I'm sorry to hear there was an error in my column last week. It should read Mable and Eldon Deacon.

Pearl Lyle had her daughters Jean and Anna Wednesday afternoon to visit her.

Pastor Murray came Wednesday night for a service in the Main Lounge.

Chick Roberts, right, strummed up a storm during Library Week and these two Gooderham students, above, tried to strum along at the Glamorgan Community Centre. The concert was sponsored by the Haliburton County Library.

Bowlers strike up friendships in club

KINMOUNT NEWS

by Millie Moss

Once again the Norland bowling has started and we're all very proud of John Pyke who held fourth place on Wednesday, September 27 in his total score. John had a stroke a few months back and suffers a lot of pain these days but that does not deter him from going to his bowling. Well done John!

A funeral was held in Cobocook for the late Merle Campbell of Norland on Friday morning October 6. Our sympathy to all her family and friends.

The Norland Seniors Bowlers in rolling right along and Wednesday, October 5 top five bowlers were: Marjory Lee, Earl Huras, Adrian Lee, Olivia Dettler, and our own Elizabeth Fryer.

Congratulations again to Les and Ada Thomas married 63 years. Les stopped by at Helen Graham's house to show us five of the potatoes grown in his own special way. They were huge, solid and weighed well over ten pounds. You'd have taken a first for sure, at the Fair Les!

Wayne Downes of R.R.1 Kirkfield, Cid Cilcus of Kirkfield and Stella Hartin of Kinmount have been very ill of late and our prayers and very best wishes go out to all of them.

The annual Thanksgiving turkey and ham dinner hosted by the Norland W.I. and held at Ward Park, Norland Recreation Centre on Saturday, October 7 was a tremendous success, thanks to all the great cooks, bakers, waitresses, dishwashers, and other helpers. The seniors, I'm told, were a great help and it was a wonderful day.

Results of the Norland Bowlers for Wednesday, October 11: Earl Huras, Bill Moss Sr. along with Norma Herbert tied, Marjory Lee, Adrian Lee, Elizabeth Fryer. Bill and I bowled for the first time since 1972. I shouldn't have but there's always next week!

Helen Graham enjoyed having guests Dave and Mary Ervine of Port Perry on Friday, October 13.

Mohawk Drive in Lindsay was the scene of a wedding on June 14 when June Fielder and Hugh Fountain became man and wife. A wedding dance followed at the new Hall in Cameron. The happy couple now reside where they were wed.

Mary Stata has been ill in Peterborough Civic Hospital. Lila Shaw suffered a badly broken arm after tripping over a branch in long grass and falling, and Hilda Buxey suffered a weak spell, fell and broke a hip while holidaying in England. I hear Stella Hartin is home from hospital following a heart attack. Helen Graham has been under the weather and Bill Wilson along with his brother-in-law, Bob Hollobon have medical problems. Let's pray they're all feeling better soon.

Congratulations to Donna Danniell of Fenelon Falls who was the lucky winner of the Kinmount Senior Citizens prize winning quilt on Thursday, October 12. The ticket was drawn at the Seniors Railroad Station card games in Kinmount. I was unable to get the scores of the games but hear that Vi Cooke held ladies high and Lloyd Crego held most lone hands.

In last weeks column I quoted Norland W.I. as hosting the lovely Thanksgiving dinner at the Recreation centre. Actually the affair was hosted by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Norland Volunteer Firefighters. Thanks again to all who helped.

Winners of the Norland Volunteer Firefighters Hockey Pool were Dave Lee for October 7 and for October 14, Debbie Gostlin. Both are from Norland.

There were six people present for the October U.C.W. meeting at the Church Hall: Elizabeth Fryer, Marian Pearson, Ella Giffin, Madeleine Cooper, Rotha Bryant and Joyce Bartley. In the absence of Marilyn Wille,

Joyce presided and Ella played piano for the singing of the hymn

Minutes of the last meeting were read, approved and signed by the acting President. A treasurer's report by Rotha Bryant showed a bank balance of $3,663.55. It was approved that $1200 be given towards the furnace. Donations were as follows: Manse $200, Alcohol and drug abuse $25, Bursary $300; Canadian Bible Society $150; John Milton Society $50; Christian Blind Mission $475.

There will be a dinner at the Norland United Church on Thursday, November 30 on behalf of the Manse fund (pot luck) sponsored by Northern Pastoral Region. A note of appreciation will be sent to Mrs. Brazeau for her help at the Op Shop. Happy birthday was sung to Marian, Madeleine and Ella. (Happy birthday girls!) A note of appreciation was received for quilting done for Mrs. Ada Johnson with $100 enclosed. There was also a note of thanks from the Campbell family and a donation of $85 to U.C.W. and $25 to the Building Fund. Madeleine based her devotions on prayer and spoke about personal experiences on this subject. This part of the meeting was closed with the repetition of the Lord's Prayer. Lunch was served by Marian. Next meeting is scheduled for December 5.

Congratulations to the Seniors who won the Haliburton Lumber Trophy for the best theme float in the Haliburton Rotary Club Carnival Parade in August. Celia Brown, Bessie Burke, Isabelle Saunders and Ruby Francis did the decorating and Marion Gould, Audrey Ireland, Ev Stata, Blanche Linton and Helen Dugan rode on the float working on a patchwork quilt and wearing flowing skirts, white blouses and hats, they personified the theme, "The Good Old Days". Meanwhile, in the back ground Dorothy Jean Connors worked at her spinning wheel.

The Kirkfield Lions will not be holding a bingo on Tuesday, October 31, so that everyone can be home to greet the goblins and later, on Tuesday, November 7 and thereafter, all the Kirkfield Lions bingos will be held at their lovely new Lions Centre in the Park on Highway 48 in Kirkfield. There will be a new program, increased prize money, doors will be open at 6:30 PM, games at 7:30 PM. Congratulations to a great group of people.

Results of the Norland Bowlers for Wednesday, October 18: Norma Herbert, Marjory Lee, Earl Huras, Elizabeth Fryer, and Gladys Routley.

Well folks, stay well and happy and give me a call at 454-2395 if you'd like to have your news aired.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY of Russell Andrus, who passed away October 27, 1986.

Sleep on, dear husband, take your rest.
They miss you most, who loved you best;
Friends may be friends, if they be true,
But I lost my best friend when I lost you.
Sadly missed by wife Violet.
32-P-25

GIBBS, WILBERT—In loving memory of a dear Father and Grandfather, who passed away October 31, 1987.

As time unfolds another year
Memories keep you forever near,
Silent thoughts of times
together
Hold memories that will last forever.
Sadly missed Marie and family.
32-P-25

CHRISTINA MADILL—In
loving memory of a dear Mother, Grandmother and great Grandmother who passed away October 29, 1985.

They say that time heals everything
But we know that isn't so
It hurts as much today
As it did four years ago.
No one knows the grief we share
When the family meets and you're not there
A special smile, a special face
A Mom is someone no one can replace.

Always loved and missed:
Ruby, Harold, Robert, Jim,
Ann, Crystal, Christopher,
Michael, Gail, Christina and Bert.
